$374,773 PUT IN WAR BONDS ON FIRST DAY

Big Campaign Gets Off To Good Start, Says Chairman; 483 Make Purchases.

REPORT ONLY PARTIAL

Brunner Asserts Additional Unrecorded Sales Boost Total For Day.

Opening at noon yesterday the Richland county Third War Loan drive today was already $374,773.25 toward its $6,000,000 goal.

Chairman Henry C. Brunner reported the first day of the drive a success and added that the reported figure is "only a portion of yesterday's total sales."

The sounding of air raid sirens throughout the county sent 5,000 workers on their way to "ring every doorbell, stop at every factory bench, every office desk."

From now until Sept. 30, campaign workers will be on the job to sell Richland counties over 6 million dollars worth of bonds for the U. S. treasury had indicated that the bond money must come from the people and not the banks.

Yesterday's sales were made to 483 persons, 450 of whom bought series E bonds. Total money put in to E bonds yesterday was $22,443.75.

Series F bonds brought $25,530 from 10 subscribers, Series G $12,300 from 144 subscribers, series C notes $100,000 from 1 subscriber, and a half per cent treasury note $58,000 from 4 subscribers.

Two per cent treasury notes $36,400 from 3 subscribers, and seven-eighths per cent treasury notes $100,000 from 1 subscriber.

Indicating this was a public loan, the largest yet attempted, and urging the people of Ohio to get behind it, Roy D. Moore, state chairman said today, "The people must respond, not only with spare money, but with spare time. Money we won't miss is not enough when it comes to buying bonds. It takes money we can feel we are giving up—but giving up for an investment."

Continuing the organization of township workers, meetings will be held this evening at Center Hall in Plymouth for Washington township at 8:30 p. m.; Perry township, at 8:30 p. m.; at Darlington town hall, Monday meetings will be held at 8:30 p. m. at Center Hall school for Millin township and at Ontario school for Springfield township.

Exhibits Going In Place for Garden Harvest Display

Exhibits were beginning to take form today at the Mansfield Armory where the county's first Victory Garden Harvest show will be opened to the public at 1 p. m. Saturday.

Vegetable, fruit, and flower entries will be received to 9 p. m. Friday by Mrs. M. O. Donlittle, 456 West Fourth street, and exhibitors were urged to bring as many of their display products as possible to the Armory tonight so they will be in place by opening time Saturday.

The show, sponsored by the Richland County Victory Garden committee, will be open Saturday afternoon and evening and from 10 a. m. to 10:30 p. m. Sunday. An admission charge of 25 cents at the door will be made. If tickets are purchased in advance from garden club members throughout the county they will cost only 20 cents.

Allied Leaflets Tell Bulgaria To Get Out Of War.

LONDON — (AP) — A Turkish radio broadcast reported by Reuters today said that Allied aircraft dropped leaflets on towns in Bulgaria demanding the unconditional surrender of the Balkan country.

Endorses Ike as Next President

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Sen. Arthur Capper (R., Kas.) today endorsed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in North Africa, for president in 1944.

"The recent European campaign has proved that in General Eisenhower the nation has not only an able diplomatist and leader, but an able administrator," Capper said.

"The general would make an excellent man in the White House, either he or General MacArthur. I only hope that the war will have developed to such a stage that General Eisenhower's presence in Europe will not be required after next year."

WHEAT PLANTING HITS NEW HIGH FOR RICHLAND

Restrictions Removed, County Farmers Increase Acreage Nearly 20 Per Cent.

Unhindered by government restrictions, Richland county farmers are planning to boost their wheat acreage this fall to the highest mark in more than a decade to help rebuild the nation's dwindling grain supply.

The county's farm authorities are reluctant to predict how much the increase will be, but Guy Taylor, county AAA chairman, said it may be almost 20 per cent.

Although there will be no AAA wheat allotments next year, the U. S. department of agriculture wheat goal for Ohio would place Richland county's acre 1944 crop at 28,300 acres, an increase of only 600 acres over the crop harvested during the past summer.

If the actual acreage increase for the county is one-fifth of the 1943 crop, county will sow more than 33,000 acres in wheat late this month.

Members of the county Triple-A committee said a number of farmers who had planned to step up their acreage are hesitating now because the government has dropped its wheat insurance program which protected wheat farmers against loss from weather.

SHOWDOWN

Senator Declares Enough Men Now In Armed Forces.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Calling for a showdown on the whole question of further enlarging the army and navy, Senator Downey (D., Calif.) declared bluntly today, "I am of the opinion the present numbers in the armed forces are sufficient."

As he cleared the decks for the second day of hearings on the manpower situation in general and the west coast's problems in particular, Downey told reporters he was "impressed" by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey's comment following Italy's surrender.

The selective service director was quoted as saying "we probably won't have to mobilize as many men for the remainder of the war as we have in the past."

White Wings Cart Away 22 Tons Following Celebration.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Weary white wings of the Sanitation department swept up and carted off 22 tons of waste paper, confetti, ticker tape, cloth and broken bottles after New York's celebration of Italy's surrender, but it was not a record.

Douglas ("Wrong Way") Corrigan was showered with 1,900 tons, and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh with 1,700 tons after their famous flights.

REPORT IRAN IN WAR

LONDON — (AP) — A Swiss radio broadcast recorded last night by Exchange Telegraph said that Iran had declared war on Germany. The radio broadcast a dispatch from Tehran, Iranian capital.

Allied, Italian Leaders Who Figure In Surrender

Italy's capitulation to the Allies thrusts these Allied and Italian leaders into the headlines. Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, top left, commander-in-chief of all Allied forces in the Mediterranean area, announced the surrender of the Italian government and also armistice terms. Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery, lower right, hero of the British rout of the Nazi Africa Corps, also is being hailed for his leadership in both the Sicilian and Italian invasions. Marshal Pietro Badoglio, lower left, who succeeded Benito Mussolini as Italian premier, capitulated to the Allies. Status of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, center, and his son, Crown Prince Umberto, top left, remained in doubt with some observers predicting the king's abdication and possibly the crown prince succeeding him.

$178,519 TO BE CAMPAIGN GOAL

Combined War Chest, Community Fund Quotas Fixed For October Drive.

Richland county's combined War Chest and Community Fund goal was placed at $178,519 today following meetings of the budget committees of both agencies to estimate the needs for 1944.

A campaign to raise that amount to keep the welfare agencies and war services operating next year will be opened in October with the exact date to be set within a few days.

The War Chest will need $106,219 in 1944, the budget committee decided at a meeting late yesterday. That amount was added to the $72,300 Community Fund request to make the over-all total. The combined campaign goal last year raised $164,700.

A balance of $14,319 remaining in the War Chest treasury will be applied toward the 1944 goal, the budget committee said.

The National War Fund will take the greater part of the 1944 War Chest collections, with $83,411 scheduled to go to the 17 (Continued on Page 16, Col. 4)

Shelby Infantry Officer Wins Distinguished Service Cross

The Distinguished Service Cross, second highest United States decoration that can be conferred, has been awarded to a Shelby officer, First Lieut. Charles W. Seton, Lieut. Seton, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Seton, received the citation for action in the invasion and conquest of Sicily.

An infantry officer, Seton had been previously decorated with the Silver Star and the Purple Heart.

Lesser citations went to five other Richland county area men. These included the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Purple Heart, and the Good Conduct medal.

DENY REPORT ITALY'S KING QUILTS THRONE

Italians Brand as Untrue Story He Abdicates In Favor of Son.

RESIGNS, SAYS BERLIN

Umberto's Wife, Crown Princess, Said To Have Gone To Switzerland.

LONDON — The Rome radio today denied reports originating in Switzerland and broadcast by the Berlin radio that King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy had abdicated in favor of Crown Prince Umberto.

"All these reports are untrue," declared Stefano, Italian news agency, in a broadcast recorded by Reuters.

Earlier Reuters had quoted Swiss reports as saying that King Vittorio Emanuele had resigned and that Crown Princess Marie Jose, wife of Umberto, had arrived in Switzerland last night.

The Associated Press, meanwhile, intercepted a Berlin broadcast which reported that King Vittorio Emanuele had "resigned."

This was not the first time in recent months there had been talk in the air of abdication by the Italian monarch. Last May the Morocco radio circulated reports that the king had abdicated or was about to do so.

Talk that Vittorio Emanuele might surrender his throne was revived again when Premier Mussolini was ousted on July 25 and Marshal Pietro Badoglio took over his place, but eventually it died down.

Badoglio, upon assuming office, had pledged his allegiance to the king and called upon the Italian people for their support in his name.

Rumors that the king had abdicated were rife throughout Europe today but they were formally denied by Stefano, official Italian news agency.

Vittorio Emanuele, now 73, never had been a dominating figure in the affairs of his nation. He once described himself as "permanent undersecretary to successive premiers" and throughout the reign of Mussolini he had been relegated to a position of insignificance in the government.

The Reuters dispatch reporting the arrival of Crown Princess Marie Jose in Switzerland said that she was accompanied by her four children.

They were said to have reached Martigny in the Canton of Valais by way of the great Saint Bernard pass and continued their (Continued on Page 8, Col. 1)

AT STAKE

Argentina's Prestige Totters With Storni Resignation.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Argentina's prestige as a major Latin American power was at stake today following the resignation of Foreign Minister Segundo Storni in the wake of Secretary of State Hull's refusal of lease-lend aid.

There apparently was no immediate out for the only country in this hemisphere continuing to maintain diplomatic relations with the Axis, but it was conceded generally that Argentina faced at least an uncertain future.

Storni is regarded in official quarters here as the most pro-United States member of the new Argentine government, which unseated by revolution the conservative regime in June, and one authoritative source went so far as to say the ex-foreign minister was being made the "goat" for a government which professed to be pro-Allied.

Americans Smash Resistance at Naples To Increase Bridgehead, Germans Report Sea-Air Battle Rages Between Sardinia, Corsica.

LA LINEA, Spain — (AP) — Two light cruisers, two destroyers and two auxiliary aircraft carriers of the Italian navy arrived at Gibraltar today and surrendered to Allied forces.

(By Associated Press)

Rome surrendered to German attack today after being shelled by Nazi artillery, Berlin claimed, while Allied sea-borne forces captured the big Italian naval base at Taranto and a huge American-British invasion armada was reported moving against the Nazi-occupied Balkan kingdom of Albania.

A bulletin from Adolf Hitler's headquarters said "the commander of Rome" capitulated after an assault by Field Marshal von Kesselring—an attack apparently made with the intention of ousting Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio and perhaps King Vittorio Emanuele III to be replaced by a puppet Fascist regime.

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, victim of the great Allied victory in North Africa, was disclosed as commander of German forces in northern Italy as the Allies smashed Nazi resistance in the Naples area and drove deeper into the heart of the embattled kingdom.

These were the highlights in a day of rapid-fire developments which saw German and Italian troops locked in bitter fighting in northern Italy and a sea-air battle between Nazi bombers and Italian warships fleeing to join the Allies.

Madrid advices said the Germans had seized control of the Brenner Pass, vital link between northern Italy and Germany, after severe fighting with Italian garrisons. German reports said the Italians were now withdrawing to the west in the Alps near Caporetto.

Berlin asserted that 80,000 Italian soldiers had surrendered their arms to German forces in northern Italy in the past 24 hours, after brief fighting at Trieste and Cremona.

The reported Allied invasion sweep toward Albania, across the Adriatic sea from southern Italy, might be the opening thrust into the Balkans to drive the Germans from southeast Europe.

Nazi troops had already occupied several Albanian cities.

ZERO HOUR: Allies Bring Up Guns, Men for Final Lae Drive

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—Troops and guns sped hourly over the Owen Stanley mountains today from Port Moresby, New Guinea, to reinforce Gen. Douglas MacArthur's armies moving virtually unopposed from two sides on Japan's bomb-smashed air base at Lae.

This swift massing of forces brought the zero hour near for Lae, with veteran Australian troops only two miles from an airfield on its northeastern outskirts and forward elements of Americans and Australians less than 10 miles away to the north-west.

(Field dispatches said Allied artillery already has opened fire on Japanese forces at Lae. Australian 25 pounders were reported to have laid down a barrage on the base while some attacking Australian units crossed a river outside the Lae defense perimeter and expected enemy action at any time.)

Activity at airfields around Port Moresby, 200 miles south of Lae, continued today.

MOMENTUM: Soviets Rolling Toward Kiev, See 'Start of End'

LONDON — (AP) — The Red army has captured Mariupol, big German defense base on the Sea of Azov, Premier Marshal Josef Stalin announced today in an order of the day.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW — Russian armies carrying the battle for the east valley of the Dnieper into its final phase are advancing less than 80 miles from Kiev on its middle reaches and less than 70 from the big bend of the river, front dispatches said today.

The swiftly gathering momentum of the Soviet forces driving toward the Dnieper on a 450-mile front threatened to isolate all German troops in the southeastern Ukraine and in the Crimea, military quarters reported.

Field reports indicated that the German defense system before Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, was near collapse as Gen. Konstantin Rokossovsky pushed westward at an accelerated pace.

With Pavlograd and Dnieperopetrovsk the immediate objectives, the Red army units in the northern part of the Donets basin mopped up large areas above Stalino and seized positions only 35 miles east of the Kharkov-Pavlograd-Zaphorozhe-Crimea railroad.

Striving to delay the apparently inevitable catastrophe, the Germans were making a desperate (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

by REX HESS

"You're going to enter this thing, aren't you?" said Jimmy Morgan, chairman of the Richland County golf tournament as much as two weeks ago.

"You know very well," I told him, "that I am not eligible for that tournament."

"Whadda ya mean?" he quizzes me.

"I am not a 10-handicap golfer," I explain. "In fact I am closer to a 20-handicap golfer. I am what is known as a bogey shooter."

"Don't let that worry you," says he.

"And furthermore," I told him, "this thing costs too much for a poor sports writer."

"The J. A. C.," says he, "will be glad to take care of that item just to have the sports writer on hand."

"But 36 holes," I moan. "When 18 tear my old dogs apart! You can't expect me to go 36 holes, and I can't expect you to cut down the tournament distance, even for a sport writer."

And there I had him. Or thought I did.

But James is a schemer and a conceiver, and an underhanded thing, and that, and thus and so. He puts me on the advisory committee. And I am not going to trudge around 36 holes of golf giving advice unless I have my clubs along—for self defense.

What is an advisory committee? It is a group of guys who are given carte blanche to nib in with their two cents worth on any and all questions, but what they may say is neither here nor there, and amounts to not so much as a hill of beans, with or without ration points.

It is an honorary appointment designed only to bring the recipient thereof to the scene of action. And this is what Morgan had in mind.

And since it seems I have to be there, and since I would not give a plugged nickel to stand around and watch someone else play golf, I am taking my clubs along.

Advisory committee? Haw. Advice is the cheapest thing on a golf course. Golfers get more free advice than any other class of people.

Anyone and everyone will gladly tell you what you are doing wrong, and attempt to set you right. But no two will tell you the same thing, and this is sometimes confusing in case you have rabbit ears and hear every bit of advice that is put out.

A dub will gladly give advice, free of charge, to a pro. And there are times when a pro will reciprocate, but I doubt if the dub will gladly go where the pro tells him to go.

Dodgers Live Up Late Race

Win 16 Out of Last 19 Games on Schedule.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The National league home-stretch looks strange this year without a race—with the St. Louis Cardinals in front by 15 games and soon to clinch their second successive pennant—but the Brooklyn Dodgers are showing that it might have been a different story if they had not faltered in midsummer.

The Dodgers' rebellion in July, and the conditions that led up to it, may not have cost Brooklyn a pennant. It is doubtful whether they could have beaten the Cardinals anyway. But apparently it did rob the senior circuit of its customary close competition through the closing weeks.

After Branch Rickey ripped the club apart, it lost 10 straight games and 19 out of 24. But since the Dodgers found themselves with new blood in mid-August they have been showing up the rest of the league.

Recently they went spinning on a 10-game winning streak and they have won 16 out of their last 19 games. Yesterday, with former President Hoover looking from a box seat, they beat the Phillies 7-6 and moved within half a game of second place. This seems to put them among the top come-backs of the year in sports.

The frolic with the Phillies, who were making their first visit to Ebbets field under the leadership of Fred Fitzsimmons, one-time idol of Flatbush, turned out to be quite a scramble.

Rookie Rex Barney, starting on the mound for the Dodgers, had no control and gave up three runs in the first inning. Two homers by Augie Galan and Billy Herman got these runs back for him and Brooklyn went ahead with another tally in the second. Then the Phillies routed Barney with two runs in the fourth and the Dodgers won the game with three in the seventh, although they had to stand off another Phillies' thrust in the ninth.

The day's only other action was in the American league, where the New York Yankees stormed to an 11-3 triumph over the Boston Red Sox and Cleveland divided a doubleheader with Detroit.

The Yankees made 15 hits and put together three-run clusters in the second and fifth frames and a five-run flurry in the sixth. Every Yankee except Nick Etten made at least one hit. Bill Dickie made four in succession to drive in three runs and Joe Gordon batted in three on a double with the bases loaded.

The Indians made 16 hits in taming the Tigers 8-3 in their first game as Lefty Al Smith pitched seven-hit ball for his 15th victory, but Hal White came back with a seven-hit hurling job in the second game as Detroit won 10-3.

College Grid Season Opens

Illinois Meets Camp Grant Team Tomorrow.

By DAVE HOFF
CHICAGO —(AP)— The college All-Star game already has opened the mid-west football season so it comes as no shock that tomorrow, Sept. 11, the collegiate campaign gets under way in earnest with Illinois and Camp Grant starting their off at Champaign.

On top of that, Great Lakes and Fort Riley (Kan.) will make it a solid week-end by clashing Sunday at Great Lakes naval training station, although it will be another week before most of the guns in the Big Ten go into action.

The following Saturday will see the Seawahks, Indiana, Michigan, Purdue, Wisconsin and Marquette in action, with Iowa, Minnesota, Northwestern, Ohio State and Notre Dame waiting until September 25.

Around the Big Ten practice fields: Iowa's Seawahks are elated over three newcomers. Frank Maznicki of Boston college and the Chicago Bears, Jimmy Smith of Illinois, and Nick Kerasiotis of St. Ambrose. . . . Purdue is trying sophomore Lewis Rose at right half since Ed Cyenas hurt his knee.

Freshman Bob Hoernsmeier was the man with the ball as Indiana worked on throwing passes. . . . Coach Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern has converted two quarterbacks and an end into guards to back up regulars Alex Kapner and Johnny Gont. . . . Elroy Hirsch, Bill Daley, Bob Wise and Capt. Paul White made up a Michigan backfield that had eyes popping during a long offensive drill.

Ohio State is beginning to show that old Paul Brown coaching as the Buckeyes' plays take on fine precision. . . . Minnesota painted from its third straight day of scrimmages but the first stringers had a lot of fun tearing for four touchdowns against the third team.

WOMEN KEGLERS SET TOURNAMENT DATES

Women's City Bowling association is all set for the coming kegling season, and has decided to stage the city tournament the same week as the men, Jan. 16 to 23.

The association will have the same officers as last year: Pauline Shively, president; Eva Imier, vice president; Mary McMullen, secretary; Katherine Miller, treasurer; and Kate Cheney, sergeant-at-arms.

Brown Faces Biggest Test

But Buckeye Mentor Isn't Fazed By Outlook.

By GRANT DILLMAN
COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio State University's apparently dismal 1943 football prospects should not even phase Paul Brown.

The 35-year-old, 150-pound Buckeye coach is accustomed to the role of underdog.

The cycle began when Brown enrolled at Massillon Washington high school, his determination to play football backed up by 120 pounds of grit and "know how."

Brown not only "beat out" his larger competitors for the quarterback spot but also became the team "sparkplug."

He graduated from high school in 1926 after a playing record which Massillon folk compare favorably with that of Harry Stuhldreher, 1919 Massillon quarterback who later became one of the famed Four Horsemen of Notre Dame.

Brown entered Ohio State University and made the freshmen football and baseball teams before he was labelled "too small" for Big Ten competition. Reluctantly he transferred to Miami University where he called signals for two years.

Brown gave a hint of the future in his first coaching job at Severn Naval Academy, Maryland. His first year—1930—Severn romped through its seven-game season undefeated. In 1935, Severn won five, tied one and lost one.

In 1932, in the face of considerable opposition from those who considered him too young, Brown was appointed coach at Massillon, O.

Along with the job he took a $3,700 deficit, antiquated equipment, a run-down football plant and a field that had to be watered before each game to keep the spectators from choking.

Massillon won two games the year before Brown took over. His first season, Massillon won 5, lost 4 and tied one. Massillon football stock began to rise. Brown had his first undefeated Tiger team in 1935.

In nine years at Massillon, Brown-coached teams won 80 games, lost 8 and tied 2, chalked up five undefeated seasons. His teams averaged 40 points a game as compared with 2 points for the opposition.

In 1940—again in the face of protests that he was too inexperienced for the job—Brown was appointed head football coach at Ohio State university.

Again Brown was on the spot. His predecessor, Coach Francis Schmidt whose razzle-dazzle finally exploded the Buckeyes on the wrong side of the win-loss column, left behind him a six-year record of 39 victories, 16 defeats and one tie.

Unperturbed, Brown expounded his theory of equal opportunity for every man on the squad. And then proceeded to put it into effect.

The result: In 1940 with a team which the "experts" conceded might win half its games, Brown rolled up seven victories, one defeat and a tie. Northwestern administered the sole defeat while the tie was with Michigan, perennial Buckeye rival.

Last year the Buckeyes won the Big Ten title and laid claim to the mythical national championship on the basis of 10 victories and one defeat—that a 17-7 triumph by Wisconsin's Badgers.

Observers agree, however, that this year Brown faces one of the biggest tests of his career as he fields a team composed principally of freshmen against the cream of the Big Ten navy schools.

But they also agree that if he fails, he'll fall fighting—in best Brown tradition.

Red Birds Fade From Flag Chase

(By Associated Press)

The Milwaukee Brewers' hopes of capturing the American Association pennant continue to be haunted by the Indianapolis Indians, although the threat of the Columbus Red Birds is becoming just a memory.

Columbus faded four and one-half games behind the leaders last night by dropping a 14-10 slugfest to Toledo's Mud Hens. But the Tribe inched within a half game of the idle Brewers by snagging a 12-3 victory from Louisville.

The St. Paul-Minneapolis game was postponed and Kansas City, like Milwaukee, was idle.

THE CLUBHOUSE

Give a fight fan a chance to gab about his favorite ring battle and it is dollars to doughnuts he'll rave about that terrible clash between Jack Dempsey and Luis Angel Firpo, just 20 years ago this month—Sept. 14, 1923, to be exact.

There have been better championship fights. There have been bloodier battles. There have been shorter and longer clashes (the Dempsey-Firpo affair went only three minutes and 57 seconds), but it is doubtful if there has ever been a more dramatic bout.

As long as there are ring rounds, who who remember that fall night, there will be those who argue that Firpo should have been heavy-weight champion, "if he knew anything." He floored Dempsey twice in the first round and knocked the Manassa Mauler through the ropes.

Jack was helped back into the ring (a violation of the boxing rules), and held on. That was Firpo's mistake. It didn't take Dempsey long to regain his wind and send the "wild bull of the pampas" to the floor seven times in the first heat, and twice in the second, before the knockout.

Today, Dempsey is a lieutenant commander in the coast guard. He has made a fine record as physical director at a New York training station and has asked for foreign duty which he should get shortly.

Firpo, fat and 40, weighing 245 pounds to the 214 he scaled the night of the title fight, is the operator of two cattle ranches outside Buenos Aires, and appears to be a successful man of affairs.

South American friends of the "Wild Bull" say he still has about $750,000 left of his ring earnings in America despite several business setbacks.

Luis' main interest these days is Abel Cestac, 230-pound farmer boy who he is grooming to bring to Argentina the world's heavy-weight title.

Firpo will recall his ring past without any coaxing. Ask him who was the hardest hitter he ever faced and he will answer—"Willard."

Maybe it is because he was greatly pleased at the recent assertion of Jess that he, Firpo, was the greatest heavyweight Willard ever saw.

"I was in great physical and mental condition that night in 1923 when I stopped Willard," Firpo recalls, "and that is probably why he has such a good opinion of me."

"Willard was a powerful man, too," he continues, "and I recall one blow he struck me in the arm that completely paralyzed me for a minute. Later on, he gave me a short right to the chin that jarred me to my heels. But that night I couldn't be beaten."

"Another powerful slugger was Bill Brennan. In my fight with him, I was so tired when the tenth round came up that I looked at the clock and asked myself 'doesn't this lion ever tire himself out?'"

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— Earl L. (Curly) Lambeau, dean of professional football's coaching fraternity, sees a scramble in the National football league this fall with at least five teams having a chance for first place.

The Detroit Lions, he predicts will fight it out with Green Bay and the Chicago Bears in the western division while the combined Philadelphia-Pittsburgh club or Washington should win the eastern flag.

Lambeau, in town with his Packers for an exhibition game with the Philadelphia-Pittsburgh entry tomorrow night, feels that Detroit, a doormat for other league teams last year, may be one of the real surprises of the season.

OTT SIGNED AGAIN
NEW YORK —(AP)— Although the Giants are doomed to finish in the National league cellar, Manager Mel Ott yesterday was signed to a three year contract at an estimated $25,000 per year. Ott succeeded Bill Terry as manager at the start of the 1942 season.

Coaches Greasy Neale and Walter Kiesling probably thought they were being pretty tough on their Philadelphia Eagles grid squad when they ordered an a. m. scrimmage the other day. . . . But the clerk at their hotel forgot to call the coaches until nearly 9.

So by the time Greasy and Walt turned up, the players already were working out under Bill Hewitt and Vic Sears and were already with: "If it happens again it'll cost ya plenty."

OTTERBEIN CONTINUES TO PLAY FOOTBALL

WESTERVILLE —(AP)— Otterbein college will continue football as long as there are eleven men available who want to play." President J. R. Howe and Coach Harry W. Ewing announced today.

"This is not the time to quit," said the coach. "If there were ever any values derived from playing the game, boys in college today are entitled to those benefits."

Al Smith Gets 15th Victory

Indians Lose Second Game To Detroit.

DETROIT —(AP)— Cleveland's Indians and venerable Al Smith matched their 1940 records yesterday as the tribe won and lost games to hold precariously to second place and the mound ace southpawed his way to his 15th victory.

Smith won the opener 6-3 for the Indians, but the nightcap went to Detroit, 10-3, when Alie Reynolds was blasted from the mound in the second inning.

Three years ago Smith came to Cleveland from Buffalo and tossed 15 triumphs, losing seven, as the Redskins staged a stretch drive to land in second place, one game back of the Tigers, and a game ahead of New York.

The 35-year-old lefthander allowed seven hits as his mates nipped Virgil Trucks and Roy Henshaw for 16.

Cleveland tallied one each in the first and second innings to top a first inning Tiger run, and was ahead until the fifth, when Detroit knotted the count. Rookie Jim Outlaw homered for the Tigers in the sixth, but the Indians drew back to the front in the seventh with two runs, and sewed up the ball game with a four-run spurge in the ninth.

Oris Hockett had a triple, and a double, and Roy Cullenbine had three singles, as every Cleveland except Russ Peters contributed to the attack.

The Tigers bunched four hits for four runs in the first inning of the afterpiece, after the Indians had tallied once, and snapped back with two more in the second, sending Reynolds to the showers. Jack Salveson took over the pitching, and the Tigers got another in the third and three more in the sixth. Pete Center pitched hitless ball for the last two innings.

The two teams resume battle today with another double header in Briggs stadium. Jim Bagby and Mel Harder are the pitching nominees.

MEET PIRATES
CINCINNATI —(AP)— The Cincinnati Reds open a five game series with the Pittsburgh Pirates with a twilight-night double-header, the first game getting under way at 5:30 this afternoon.

See Limit on Deer Hunting

Expect Restriction To Three Counties.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The Ohio Conservation and Natural Resources commission probably will authorize an open deer hunting season only in three southern counties, rescinding a tentative decision to permit deer shooting in 10 northeastern counties, conservation sources indicated today.

The commission will take final action tomorrow on deer hunting regulations, tentatively drafted last month. These provide for a 12-day season, Sunday excluded, from Dec. 6 to 18, with hunters restricted to shotguns and bows and arrows.

The open areas tentatively approved include Scioto, Adams and Pike counties in conservation district 7, and Ashtabula, Columbiana, Cuyahoga, Geauga, Lake, Mahoning, Portage, Stark, Summit and Trumbull counties in district 3.

A flood of petitions and personal letters objecting to deer hunting in northeastern Ohio have reached the conservation division. "The commission likely will heed the protests from that area," one official said.

On the recommendation of its deer study committee, the commission decided tentatively that bucks only may be killed in the southern counties but both bucks and does in the third district, where farmers reported widespread crop damage by deer roaming into Ohio from Pennsylvania.

Most protests came from the Cleveland and Akron districts. Public park authorities and many sportsmen contended crop damage caused by deer was not sufficiently heavy to warrant a hunting season.

Jerry Zeller Leaves For Coast Guard Duty

Tygers Lose Fullback; Zivkoff Out of Action With Bad Shoulder

Out of Action With Bad Shoulder

YEARILLD ZELLER left yesterday for service in the U. S. Coast Guard.

Which means that Jerry Zeller, hard driving Tyger fullback, is lost to the Mansfield high school football team for the season.

Coach Paul Snyder had some more sad news for Tyger fans today. Little Mike Zivkoff, speedy wingback, will be out of action for at least the first two games with a cracked collarbone.

Snyder, anticipating Zeller's early call to service, had been thinking of moving Zivkoff to fullback to divide those chores with Dominic Musille.

With Zeller and Zivkoff both out of the lineup, Snyder has a number of backfield combinations to consider.

Here's the way he had the first backfield lined up before: Russ McBride, blocking back and calling signals, Zeller fullback, Roland Schmidt tailback, and Zivkoff wingback.

Now Dominic Musille moves up to first string fullback with Joe Parry brought back from a guard position as his understudy. Parry was a wingback two years ago, is accustomed to backfield play, and really drives.

McBride moves from blocking back to tailback, and still calls signals. Jack Guy, who alternated at blocking back and tackle last year, returns to the blocking back job until he gets his call to service with the Marines.

Schmidt moves from tailback to wingback, sharing the spot with his brother, Otto. Bill Dent also is looking good at tailback, and when he occupies that spot, McBride will take over the blocking back duties, and Guy goes back to tackle. All very simple, isn't it?

Meanwhile the line is shaping up satisfactorily. Bill Lewis holds down one end and will do the punting. Lewis has been practicing punts regularly during the summer, and is getting his boots away much faster, while retaining the height and distance on his spirals.

Joe Komjenovich and Sam Musille at present have first call on the other end. Jim Adams and Don Hartig are battling it out for guard replacement for Joe Parry, while Carl Schaefer is holding down the other guard.

Bob Miller has the inside track for center and Gen. Haas, the Ironton boy, looks good at inside tackle, with Jack Meeting at first rate replacement. Etzel and Jacobs are battling for the other tackle with Guy ready to step in if needed.

Snyder probably will try out all his various combinations this evening when he sends the Tygers into a scrimmage session with Galion's Orangemen at Stadium field at 5 o'clock.

There was more news coming out of the Tyger camp today.

The Tygers' opening game at Marion has been postponed from next Friday night to Saturday night. Ringling Brothers circus, which comes to Mansfield a week from tomorrow night, will be in Marion on Friday night, and the Presidents wisely decided not to compete with the circus for crowds.

Changing the date of the Marion game gives Coach Snyder a chance to scout Elyria personally. As usual, Elyria opens the season against Oberlin next Friday night. And the Tygers go to Elyria for the second game of the season.

BPW AT GALION LAUNCHES FALL CLUB SEASON

Women's Group Has Meeting; Hobbyist on Egyptian Culture Talks.

GALION—A dinner-meeting Thursday evening at the McGaughy home on Harding Way west, launched the fall season for the Galion Business and Professional Women's club.

Greetings were extended to the 35 members by the president, Lois Smith, who had charge of the short business session. Tables were artistically decorated in cut flowers.

Programs for the year were distributed by the program chairman, Edna Smith.

The program for the evening was in charge of the international relations committee, headed by Alice Plack and composed of Mrs. Reuben Kelley, Mrs. Pearl Cheap and Bertha Caldwell.

This featured a talk about Egyptian culture given by Earl Gaines of Galion who has made the study of this a hobby. He is employed at the North Electric Mansfield company as an engineer. Mrs. W. W. Koppe entertained the group with several songs.

The club was also addressed briefly by Bertha Chacopoulos, past president, who was recently appointed as director of District No. 5 of the Ohio Business and Professional Women's club.

Thursday marked the September meeting of the Ladies' Aid society at the First Baptist church. Hostesses were Mrs. Charles Caskey, Mrs. W. Brooks and Mrs. Roy Tuttle. The afternoon's program was in charge of Mrs. C. L. Kensing, and consisted of devotions by Mrs. Herbert Edwards, a reading by Mrs. William Dean, and contests. Mrs. Roy Tuttle presided.

Members of the Wesleyan class of First Methodist church held their monthly business and social meeting, Thursday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Freeman.

Pacific Natives Donate $194 to U. S. Red Cross

HEADQUARTERS, SOUTH PACIFIC FORCES—(UPI)—The good-neighbor policy as practiced in the Solomon Islands by the navy has resulted in a tangible return to the American Red Cross in the shape of a $194.62 contribution from native tribes as well as vital important cooperation with American forces, this headquarters reports.

The contribution to the Red Cross, collected in an advanced island post in the Solomons which has been the scene of recent action, was made in return for voluntary services rendered by navy doctors to the natives. The money was presented by 44 Solomon chiefs, representing hundreds of their people and was accepted for transmittal after consultation by the natives with Bishop Walter H. Baddeley, Anglican bishop of Melanesia.

The money was presented to John Carney, Alexandria, Va., director of the Red Cross in the South Pacific area, at this headquarters by Chaplain Lt. E. V. Best, USNR, San Diego, Cal. Pictures of the presentation will be forwarded with a duly authorized receipt to the native chiefs.

Navy officials emphasized the importance of the friendly feeling of the natives toward America, which resulted from the services of the navy doctors. Nature of the services was not specified nor was the exact location of this island.

STUDY ASHLAND TIME CHANGE

ASHLAND—City councilmen will consider a change back to standard time for the winter if citizens desire.

With the city now operating under Eastern War time council at a meeting this week indicated a willingness to go back to slow time from Oct. 1 to April 1 with daylight saving time to be used during the summer months.

The councilmen accordingly plan to "sound out" opinion of citizens and factory heads before their next meeting.

PAY BOOST FOR CITY WORKERS GETS REFUSAL

Ashland Council Turns Down Request of Firemen and Policemen.

ASHLAND—Policemen and firemen here were refused pay raises of $35 per month this week by city council. Councilmen took only a five-minute recess to consider the request.

Members of the police and fire department have been attending the last several meetings of council asking the increase and asked for an answer at this week's meeting just as a motion to adjourn had been submitted.

In refusing the increase Jack B. Lentz, vice president of council, stated that both of the departments had already received a 10 per cent increase this year with other employees of the city and that another pay increase to these two departments would entitle other city employees to an increase which the city could not afford.

Horses here may have to have headlights or tail lights or maybe both if they are out after night.

A discussion of the traffic hazard created by increased horseback riding here after night was held by city councilmen when they convened this week. An ordinance requiring some kind of lights for horse and rider was suggested.

NAME OFFICERS

BUCYRUS BLOCK HIT BY BLAZE

Damage Estimated at $4,000 In Fire That Routs Family of Four.

BUCYRUS—Fire starting in a storage room gutted a two-story business and residence block at Swartz and Railroad streets Thursday, causing damage estimated at between $4,000 and $5,000.

Mr. and Mrs. James Elliott and two small children were forced to flee from their second-story apartment through a smoke filled hall and stair. None of their belongings were saved.

Origin of the fire was not determined by Fire Chief William Mulder.

Two trucks, a passenger car and a hay baler belonging to Cletus Schaefer, stored in the rear of the building on the ground floor, were damaged.

William Hart, state superintendent of banks Columbus, was guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Crawford County Bankers' association at the YMCA Thursday night.

Seated at the dinner tables were 60 bankers and bank associates of the county.

Special guests were Paul Elhot, chairman of group six of the Ohio Bankers' association of Mansfield and William Kuhn, Shelby a secretary of the same area. Entertainment was provided by Rev. H. E. Stafford who presented a group of humorous readings.

T. M. Kennedy of Bucyrus Farmers and Citizens bank was chairman in charge of arrangements.

PAY BOOST FOR CITY WORKERS GETS REFUSAL

Ashland Council Turns Down Request of Firemen and Policemen.

ASHLAND—Policemen and firemen here were refused pay raises of $35 per month this week by city council. Councilmen took only a five-minute recess to consider the request.

Members of the police and fire department have been attending the last several meetings of council asking the increase and asked for an answer at this week's meeting just as a motion to adjourn had been submitted.

In refusing the increase Jack B. Lentz, vice president of council, stated that both of the departments had already received a 10 per cent increase this year with other employees of the city and that another pay increase to these two departments would entitle other city employees to an increase which the city could not afford.

Horses here may have to have headlights or tail lights or may be both if they are out after night.

A discussion of the traffic hazard created by increased horseback riding here after night was held by city councilmen when they convened this week. An ordinance requiring some kind of lights for horse and rider was suggested.

INVASION FLEET PRACTICES, NAZI GUNS ARE QUIET

Big Convoy Sails Through Channel Within Shadow of French Coast.

(By United Press)

ABOARD MOTOR LAUNCH, ENGLISH CHANNEL.—(Delayed)

—The biggest convoy since Dunkirk sailed through the English channel within the shadow of the French coast for two hours in a pre-invasion practice session today without drawing a shot from Hitler's so-called fortress.

The tempting target offered to German guns and bombs maneuvered under the protection of air fleets where only three years ago Britain was battling the Luftwaffe for its life.

Three thousand Allied planes, some aiding the convoy and some on bombing missions to the continent, filled the skies above the channel unchallenged.

The convoy ranged from landing barges to 10,000-ton transports taking part in one of the biggest amphibious exercises ever held in the channel.

All night last night the vessels moved into position and as dawn broke over the channel it revealed lines of landing craft and small vessels.

All the ships turned south toward Boulogne, wheeling in a quarter circle and heading for the French coast while Spitfires formations kept watch and American Flying Fortresses went over to hammer targets on the coast.

There were no German planes in the sky, no sound from the Nazi coastal batteries which have pounded the English coast across the channel narrows for three years.

Dull thuds in the distance, we discovered, were the explosions of Allied bombs on the continent.

Lines of smoke floated down to cover the various formations as the convoy and its aerial raiders illustrated definitely the channel is English—right up to the three mile limit.

We might have been aboard an excursion boat on a day's outing. There was no intention of landing on the French coast but the men did not know that before they went out.

The contrast between today and three years ago today—two days after start of the London blitz—was impressive. The U. S. airforce flew 1,600 sorties above the channel fleet, a new record. Three thousand lighter and bomber sorties were carried out by Allied air forces in 24 hours. Some attacks were against coastal batteries.

Mercury Drop to 42 Stirs Frost Fears on Farms

Richland county farmers and gardeners watched with apprehension today as the mercury fell to 42 degrees, dangerously near the frost mark, but reports from county areas indicated that if there was any frost it was too light to do much damage.

It was one of the lowest early September readings in years, and crop observers feared the cold was a forerunner of an early fall which would kill late corn and soybeans before they mature, reducing sharply the food supply for the winter.

Readings in the low forties were reported all over the middle west and in the Dakotas the mercury skidded to 28 degrees. Continued cold was forecast for tonight, but the weatherman gave no hint of frost.

The first frost in Richland county usually comes during the first week in October, and county farmers and gardeners hope it will be that late this year so their late crops will have a chance to mature.

U. S. ANNOUNCES POSITIONS OPEN

The U. S. civil service commission announced vacancies in the position of procurement inspectors in grades ranging from $1,400 to $2,900 per year in various optional branches.

The branches include aircraft, engines, instruments, parachutes, tools and gages, radio, textiles, optical, magnetic materials and fuels.

Additional information and application blanks are available at the civil service room in the post office building.

WOOD IN DEMAND

NEW YORK.—(AP)—To deliver clean water at a low cost, an impressive amount of wood pipe is being used in the pulp and paper industry. High-pressure pipe which is always full is saturated with water and is not generally treated, but long lines, or short ones which are alternately full and partially so, are being treated with a salt preservative or creosoted in growing volume.

Even if cast iron, steel, or other types of pipe were available, treated wood pipe would remain in demand because it carries more water, size for size, than other kinds, and its smooth interior surface will not rust, chip, scale, tuberculate, corrode or pit. Water in a wood pipe is insulated against temperature change, the water flowing at outside temperatures which would burst a metal pipe.

SOAP-LIKE PARTICLES HAILED AS LEAD TO NEW DISEASE CURE

PITTSBURGH.—(INS)—New kinds of disease-curing serum drugs may be forthcoming as the result of an important development in medical chemistry announced at the American Chemical society meeting at Pittsburgh today.

Professors Frank W. Putnam and Hans Neurath of the Duke university School of Medicine, Durham, N. C., report they can produce striking effects in blood serum particles by treating them with new synthetic soap-like materials.

When some disease germs of a particular kind, or some other protein substance is inoculated into the body of a man, horse or rabbit, this is what happens: the blood in the living body produces "anti-bodies" to fight the germs.

These antibodies are protein particles, that is, roundish blood serum protein particles, which shape themselves in such a way that they tackle the germ and practically kill it.

It is because of these newly formed antibodies, special kind of protein substances, that the blood serum develops curative properties.

Now, the scientists have found that they can cause in the serum, the blood fluid, of the horse reactions like those produced by germs only by synthetic "detergents," which are soaplike materials.

The blood serum protein particles are roundish. When the soap attacks them, they flatten out, and turn longish. By washing out the soaps, the proteins again curl up and turn roundish.

Thus, the scientist can cause any degree of alteration in the serum protein particles. Out of such methods it is possible that new kinds of disease preventive and curative serum drugs may be developed.

Two Truck Drivers, Operator of Bus Cited By Police, State Officers.

Two truck drivers, a bus driver and a motorist were arrested yesterday by state highway patrolmen and city police.

Carlos Snyder, Edison R. D. 1, was arrested at 9:55 p. m. by state patrolmen for driving his truck 65 miles an hour on Route 42 north of the city. He was cited to appear in municipal court Saturday at 9:30.

Another truck driver, Traverance E. Carter, 398 Buffalo street, will appear in municipal court Saturday for hearing on charges of speeding. He was arrested on Route 42, north of the city for driving 65 miles an hour.

Arrested yesterday afternoon by police on Park avenue west for crossing a yellow line, Harry G. Caldwell, Blannox, Pa., Greyhound bus driver, posted $16.30 bond in municipal court this morning and waived hearing.

Orlando I. Bishop, Mansfield R. D. 4, was arrested by police accused of speeding at 55 miles an hour yesterday afternoon on Park avenue west. Hearing is set for Monday in municipal court.

SUGGESTS JOB

Wallace Says FDR Should Head Peace Discussions.

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Vice President Henry A. Wallace told a press conference today that he personally wanted to suggest President Roosevelt as permanent chairman at the peace table.

"With peace approaching," he said, "there is one man exceedingly important to that peace."

Wallace said the president should preside at the peace table because of his contacts, his excellent knowledge of geography and "because the Roosevelt name is the magic name all over the world."

Another reason why the president should hold a prominent place in the peace negotiations, he added, was that "we as a nation have less territorial ambition than any other nation."

NAZIS ATTACK ROME, ALBANIA INVASION DUE

Huge Armada Moves on Italy's Neighbor as Yanks Get Firm Grip on Naples.

ported that a violent sea-air battle was in progress off the Italian west coast between German bombers and a powerful flotilla of Italian warships fleeing to join the Allies.

A Nazi broadcast said the Italian naval formation "on Anglo-American orders was attacking German shipping between Sardinia and Corsica," and asserted that German planes had sunk a battleship and a cruiser.

"Another battleship, a cruiser and a destroyer were severely damaged by bomb hits," the broadcast said.

"The battle with this naval formation is still in progress."

Radio Rome said three 35,000-ton Italian battleships, along with a flotilla of cruisers and destroyers, had left the naval base at La Spezia on the northwest Italian coast and were heading toward Allied ports.

Berlin had previously asserted that units of the long shore-bound Italian navy had "joined the German navy to continue the fight."

Unconfirmed reports reaching Madrid from the Swiss-Italian frontier said British troops, under the protection of U. S. warships, had landed at La Spezia.

Other rapid-fire developments included:

1. A flurry of contradictory reports arose over the status of Italy's King Vittorio Emanuele III.

Stefani, the official Italian news agency, denied unconfirmed Swiss frontier reports and a Berlin broadcast asserting that the 73-year-old monarch had abdicated in favor of his son, Crown Prince Umberto, 39. Berlin said the king had "resigned."

2. The United Nations radio, in a broadcast beamed to the Italian people, urged them to strike at German lines of communication and declared: "The next seven days will be decisive."

3. German troops, moving to block a possible Allied thrust into the Balkans from southern Italy, were reported by the Hungarian news agency to have occupied Albania and the entire eastern Adriatic coast.

4. An Allied broadcast said the Germans had also occupied the big port of Genoa, on the Italian northwest coast.

5. Italian troops fleeing into neutral Switzerland said a large force of Italians encamped on the Italian side of the Mont Cenis railway tunnel near Susa, 37 miles west of Turin, were halting all incoming German rail traffic from France.

At least 2,000 Italian soldiers had already abandoned their posts in France, crossed the Swiss frontier and surrendered with their arms and baggage vehicles.

6. Madrid dispatches said fighting between German and Italian troops was erupting over a wide area from French Savoy down the entire length of the Po valley in Italy.

7. Possibly heralding action to surrender Rome without a fight, Premier Badoglio issued a communique announcing that "negotiations are under way with the commander of the German troops in the Rome zone to move these troops toward the north."

On the fighting front, Allied headquarters announced that strong forces of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth army, celebrating their baptismal fire, threw the Germans back to expand their foothold in the Naples region.

"Allied troops are fanning out in all directions (in the Naples area)," radio France reported, and reinforcements are pouring ashore.

Farther down the peninsula, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth army advanced 20 miles north along the east (Adriatic) coast while other Eighth army columns swept into Pizzo on the west coast, four miles north of Vibo Valentia.

It also was announced that Allied troops had captured Ventotene island, 25 miles due west of Naples.

(The British radio declared Venice, Turin and Florence "are now in Italian hands after street fighting," and said fighting was in progress between Italians and Germans in Haute Savoie, France, and Albania, with the Italians still holding Tarana, the Albanian capital.)

(The German communique, however, declared Nazi measures against the treasury of the Badoglio government have produced successful results, practically everywhere in the Balkans, in Upper Italy and the south of France," and that the bulk of Italian forces had surrendered their arms to the forces of Adolf Hitler.)

The United Nations radio, disclosing the seizure of Genoa by the Germans, declared the Germans were massing their main forces in northern Italy to prepare a major battle line and urged Italian workers to engage in large-scale efforts to sabotage the enemy's effort.

Simultaneously with the Allied successes in the Naples area where Germans were threatened with being cut off from effective contact with their forces on the Italian foot, British-Canadian troops of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's eighth army drove up the east and west coast of Calabria against light German resistance.

The west coast column made a junction at Vibo Valentia with infantry and command who had landed near Pizzo, and the combined force drove forward past Pizzo.

The east coast column captured Monasterace Marina.

The eighth army was now more than 60 miles from the southern tip of the peninsula. Its front extended from Pizzo back along the coast to Vibo Valentia, thence south Constantino and Cinquefrondi, southeast to Siderno and finally along the east coast road to Monasterace Marina and beyond.

Few if any enemy troops were believed to have been left in the great inland mountain area bulging inside this line since roads are virtually non-existent.

Today's headquarters announcement was the first disclosure that the American fifth army, which had been commanded by Gen. Clark in Morocco, had been reorganized to include some British units.

It was probable that the bulk of Gen. Clark's force now was ashore, despite the strong reaction of the German armored forces and the attack at one time by about 40 German bombers.

The whole operation had been aided by the lights going on again in Italy Tuesday night when Italy took herself out of the war at Germany's side.

The brightly lighted beaches and coast towns, after three years of blackout, guided Allied soldiers and sailors to the landing places. Allied airforces, besides hammering roads and bridges at Capua and Cancelli in the Naples area, bombed similar targets at Potenza in South Central Italy, a landing ground at Scanzano on the Gulf of Taranto, and the Grosseto railway yards north of Rome.

American Liberators from the middle east attacked the airbases at San Nicola and Tortotella near Foggia.

Allies Sit On Lid Of Boiling Balkans

WASHINGTON — (AP) — How to prevent a premature explosion in Europe's traditional powder keg, the Balkans, was viewed here today as one of the pressing problems now confronting Allied strategists.

The fuse was lit, as expected, when Italy surrendered, and already there have been reports of hastily-summoned war councils in the German satellite nations. These were taken here as only the outward signs of alarm in high quarters and strong unrest among the populations.

It may be expected, therefore, that some of the next major developments in Europe may come in some of those nations—Rumania, Hungary and Bulgaria—or in the two conquered countries of Yugoslavia and Greece where it is assumed that the spirit of rebellion against Nazi domination is strengthened by belief that the day for action is fast approaching.

The aim of Allied strategy for the Balkans now must be to try to keep the forces of revolution and guerrilla warfare from spending their power before the armies of Britain and the United States are prepared to give them full assistance.

Because of the problem of getting troops into the Balkans an offer of surrender at present or in the immediate future might be somewhat embarrassing to Allied commanders in the Mediterranean theaters. For if troops could not be dispatched in force, Germany might take advantage of any such situation to take over the surrendering country.

Nazis Report Attack On Spitzbergen

LONDON — (AP) — German naval units and marines were reported by the Berlin radio last night to have attacked the Arctic island of Spitzbergen on Wednesday, capturing prisoners, destroying munitions and fuel supplies, and wrecking radio and meteorological installations.

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, implied the Allies had established a substantial base on the former Norwegian island 600 miles east of Greenland and 660 miles from the North Pole.

British naval sources here said they were unable to comment on the German account of the operation, but in some quarters it was viewed as a possible German move to divert home attention from the fall of Italy.

The German broadcast said the object of the raiders was to "destroy military establishments," of particular importance to enemy air and sea forces in the Northern sea.

British Reveal 17 Italian Ships Sunk

LONDON — (AP) — British submarines sank 17 Italian vessels, including one destroyer, and damaged two others in the Southern Adriatic "during the concluding stages of the operations against Italy," the admiralty announced today.

Sent to the bottom were two large supply ships, three medium-sized supply ships, one large tanker, a destroyer, an armed medium-sized merchantman and nine small auxiliaries.

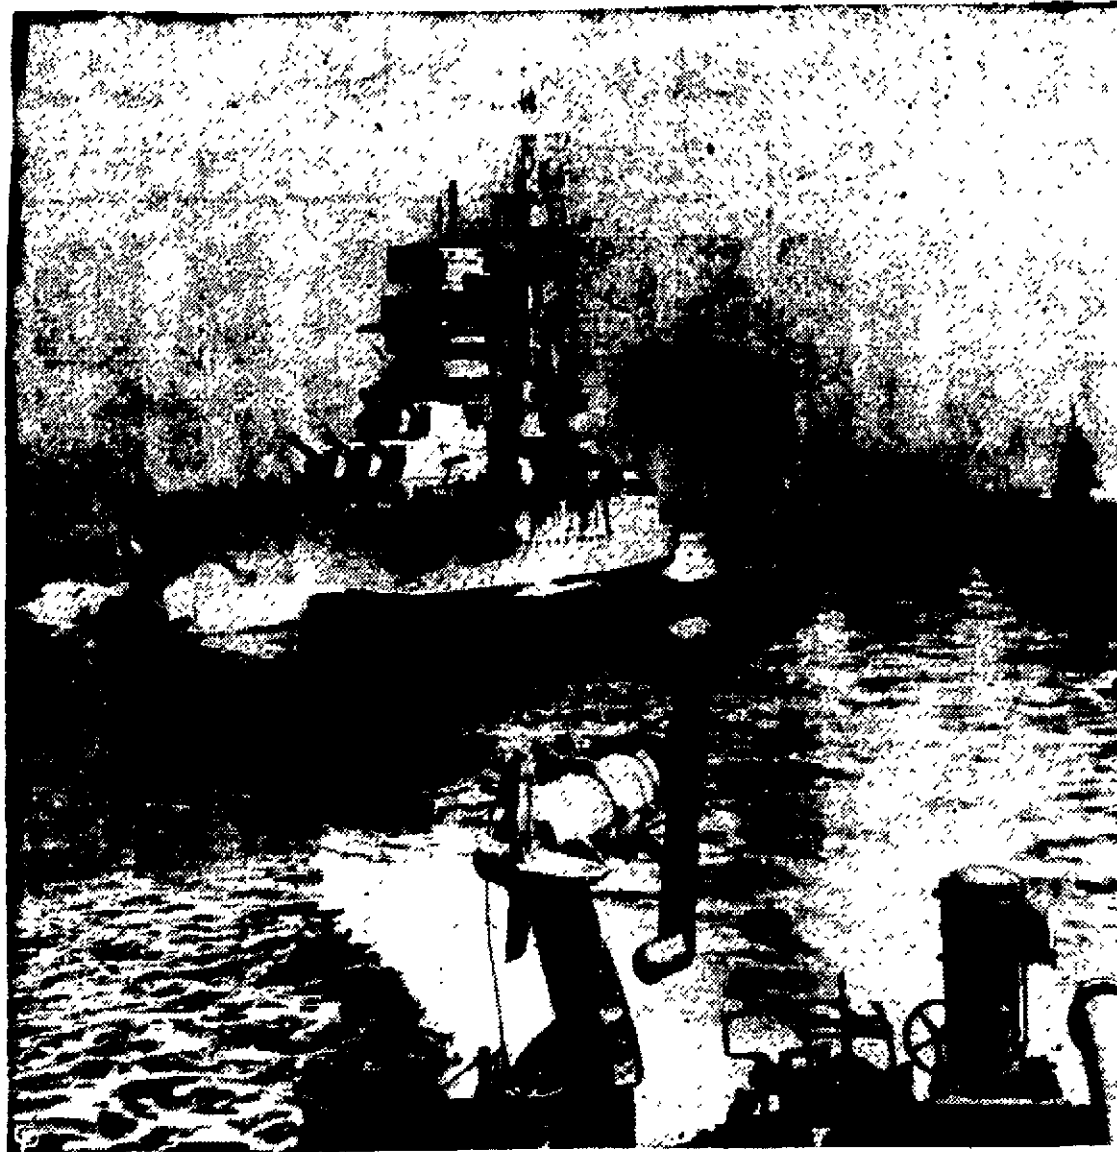

Damaged vessels included a large transport and a large supply ship, the communique revealed.

Italians Disarmed, Punished By Axis

LONDON — (AP) — The Berlin radio said today that Italian troops in Rumania have been disarmed.

By the fourth year of this war food production was up 19 per cent, as compared with an increase of only 1 per cent during the fourth year of World War I.

Part of Italian Fleet Comes to Allies

Three warships of the Italian navy, which now is scheduled to come into Allied hands, are pictured above somewhere at sea. All Italian warships which are able to elude the Germans have been ordered to proceed to Allied ports. Many strong units of the fleet still are afloat.

37TH PRAISED FOR HEROISM

Division With Mansfielders Serving In It Lauded For Action at Munda.

fought under the command of Major Gen. Robert S. Beightler, former state highway director.

The rough terrain and muggy heat of the South Pacific were responsible for about 90 per cent of the division's losses, the operations officer said. The men had to battle swamps, disease, and weather, as well as the Japs.

While the attack at Munda was launched from the south by the Twenty-Fifth division, the battalion was detailed to cut off the Munda supply line which originated at Vila, across Kula gulf. When Munda fell, it was to be relieved by the Twenty-Fifth division.

The battalion attacked the Japanese at the landing stage at Bairoko and encountered unexpectedly strong resistance which drove it back to positions at Rice's Anchorage. From there attacks were launched which succeeded at great cost in forcing a detour in the original Munda supply line route.

The embattled ground force was deprived of support from the air force because the dense overhead cover made it impossible for flyers to distinguish between American and Japanese lines. The infantrymen fought in jungles so dense that they had to cut their way inch by inch.

The enemy was lodged in prepared positions in palm log bunkers and dugouts. Machine guns were sighted ingeniously through tree roots and machine gun nests were undetectable.

The battalion pounding valiantly at the supply line was forced to operate without the expected support from the Twenty-Fifth division which was storming Munda. The resistance in that sector was prolonged beyond calculations, and the Twenty-Fifth was not free to drive north to relieve the garrison.

Immediately upon the fall of Munda the Twenty-Fifth began its northward drive. By the time it had reached the battalion entrenched at Rice's Anchorage, heavy losses had been sustained by the Ohio group.

The depleted battalion however had achieved its objective and the Japanese lifeline in the Pacific had been snapped off closer to Tokyo.

FAILS TO ARRIVE

MADRID — (AP) — The Barcelona office of the Italian air line announced last night that the regular passenger plane due from Rome on Thursday had not arrived. It was not known whether the Rome-Barcelona service had been suspended indefinitely.

PERMIT HOLDERS GIVEN INCREASE

Get 20 Per Cent 'Bonus' In Rum, Cordials.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — State Liquor Director Don Fisher today ordered a 20 per cent bonus of rum, cordials and brandy to Ohio liquor permit holders for the two-week period beginning Monday. Fisher said an accumulated inventory of the bonus items made the extra allotment possible. Earlier this week, Fisher said a 10 per cent bonus ordered for the first two weeks would be continued.

The bonus is based on the permit holder's ration allotment which has been set at about 50 per cent of his weekly purchases during the first half of 1942.

RAPIST FLEES MILITARY PRISON

Army Private Who Assaulted Former Actress Escapes.

RIVERSIDE, Cal. — (AP) — Pvt. George P. Runkle, sentenced two weeks ago to life in a military prison for raping former Screen Star Lina Basquette, has escaped from the March Field guard house, authorities disclosed today.

All Southern California and Nevada communities have been asked to be on the lookout for the 22-year-old ex-convict from Cleveland.

When sentenced by a Muroc air base court martial, Runkle swore he would "get" Capt. George H. Rawlins, assistant trail judge advocate who prosecuted him.

ALLIES PREPARE BIG LAE DRIVE

Rushing Troops, Guns Over Owen Stanley Mountains For Major Assault.

Lae, makes New York's LaGuardia field look like an emergency landing strip. From the moment after dawn when the cloud masses lift from the Owen Stanleys until they close down again in the afternoon over the 10,000 to 12,000 foot barges, there is rarely a minute when a formation of transports is not in the air over the Moresby fields.

The transports land behind Lae in the Markham valley on the Nadzab airstrip, seized Sunday by paratroopers.

Neither the Markham valley forces nor the Australians who went ashore last Saturday above Lae have as yet run up against sizable opposition nothing larger than the 100 Japanese the African-seasoned Australians easily whipped at Singaua plantation.

Inside Lae, if the Japanese choose to fight, they must do so from fortifications virtually in ruins from the 500 tons of bombs which Liberators and Mitchells have dropped on them within a week.

PREFERS ARMY TO SNAKES

SACRAMENTO, Cal. — (AP) — Rattlesnakes drove Alvin Lawrence, 30, from the ranks of the draft dodgers to the armed forces. He held out for 10 days in Yellowstone National park, living largely on a diet of berries and rattlesnakes, but finally decided that the armed forces would feed him better than that and gave himself up.

SOVIETS ROLL TOWARD KIEV

Red Star Says Expulsion of Nazis From Russia Has Begun.

stand west and southwest of Khar'kov in the last German bulge into the eastern Ukraine, where Soviet progress was slow but steady.

To the northwest, the Soviet capture of Bakhmach deprived the Nazis of their most important stronghold east of Kiev, releasing Rokossovsky's forces for a full dress push toward the Dnieper.

The Russians also fanned out northwestward toward Chernigov and pushed southward in the direction of Priluki, aiming to cut the Poltava-Kiev railroad. Priluki is about 45 miles southwest of Bakhmach, and its fall would cut the last lateral railroad east of the Dnieper connecting northern Russia and the Ukraine.

Red army units descending southward entered the Poltava administrative district and reached points 60 miles northwest of Poltava, where they joined forces enveloping Poltava from the east.

The army organ Red Star hailed the fast-breaking Soviet victories in an article asserting that the expulsion of the Germans from Russia had begun.

"For the first time," the article said, "we feel the beginning of the end. The Donets basin is only a chapter. Kiev is now awaiting us and can already hear in the distance the cannonade that is bringing liberation."

The Soviet advance toward Kiev rapidly was taking on the character of a pincers offensive with the northern army driving through newly-captured Bakhmach toward Nezhin, 40 miles to the west and 72 miles northeast of Kiev, while the southern force approached Priluki, 50 miles west of Romni and 80 miles east of Kiev.

Nearly 300 miles to the south, the Russians were less than 75 miles east of the Dnieper river following the capture of Novo Pavlovka, and advancing rapidly through territory held by the Germans since 1941.

Another Russian force advanced southward from re-captured Stalino, apparently in an attempt to reach the sea of Azov west of Mariupol and trap large German forces holding out to the east and northeast. Mariupol has been the southern anchor of the German defense line since the fall of Taganrog, 60 miles to the east.

Altogether, more than 300 towns and villages were liberated by the Russians in advances of up to 12½ miles along a 500-mile battlefront from the Donets basin to a point north of Bryansk yesterday. Nearly 5,000 Germans were killed.

The day's biggest victory was the capture of Bakhmach, a strategic railroad junction 112 miles east of Kiev and 40 miles east of Nezhin, following a two-day battle in which some street blocks changed hands repeatedly.

More than 180 towns and villages were re-occupied west, northwest and southwest of Stalino in the Donets basin alone. Some 1,500 Germans were killed and prisoners were taken. Northwest of Stalino, where Novo Pavlovka was captured, the Russians pressed on in pursuit of the beaten enemy at such a rate that he had no time to fortify an intermediate line. Russian planes bombed and dive bombed the retreating forces, shooting down ten German planes in combat and destroying another 20 on an airfield.

On the central front, the Russians captured Lyudimovo, 44 miles north of Bryansk, in a sudden drive from the north and south. An estimated 1,200 Germans were killed and 300 taken prisoner.

Several German defense bases were seized southwest of Khar'kov and new ground also gained before Smolensk.

CHAPTER XVIII

With the unwearied patience of his race Cle Hightower gave himself to tracking down the train robbers. There were rumors enough about the whereabouts of the Hickory gang, but most of them winked out when he ran them to the source. The days succeeded each other until a week had gone before he picked up a definite clue from a wandering Creek Indian. The Creek had come up from the Kiamichi country through the Sans Bois mountains and had chanced on two men who had shot a deer. Their actions had seemed strange for they had covered him with rifles and waved him around. Reaching Wilburton, he had learned of the Santa Fe hold-up and at once suspected the hunters. His description of the men fitted Cass Hickory and Rush Greer.

In the dust of the road the Creek drew the route to the place where he had seen the hunters. Hightower memorized every detail, the flat face of rock above the ridge, the willows along the creek, the sod house of the old buffalo hunter falling to ruins, the red foothills with the deep gulch with the skulls of three horses.

The Choctaw filled his saddlebags with supplies and struck across the prairie for the Sans Bois range. He passed the landmarks given him by the Creek. Close to nightfall he rode up the gulch with the skulls.

He made a dry camp without a fire and at daybreak was again in the saddle. He followed a stream into the hills. If the outlaws had camped in the Sans Bois it would likely have been on the bank of a stream. An hour later he looked down on the cold ashes of a recent fire.

No footprints were visible. Nearby he saw where the horses had been picketed. The place had been deserted within a few hours.

A bit of charred paper caught Hightower's eye. He dismounted, picked it up and smoothed it out. It was a part of the front page of the Guthrie Herald. The date of issue was that of the hold-up. The Choctaw looked at that fragment of newspaper a long time, but his mind was not on what was written there. He wondered how it came to be here. One of the bandits must have picked up the Herald at Guthrie on his way to Mulhall. Then he had used it to start the camp fire. It indicated that the campers had been in Guthrie on the day of the train robbery. At last Cleburn was on the right trail.

The camp litter showed that the outlaws had been here two or three days. Perhaps they had left hurriedly and might be making for Arkansas or Texas, or they might be moving down toward their old habitat. Hightower decided the fugitives would stick to the terrain they knew best.

If they were short of provisions they would have to get more. It seemed likely that they would buy what they needed at Clayton Station. He rode out of the hills to the Kiamichi river valley, crossed a rough region out into gulches and washes and came to a grassy prairie where cattle grazed.

Here he let his mount graze for an hour. By the mid-afternoon he reached the station. The Choctaw made sure that no horses were tied to the hitch rack in front of the post. He fastened his saddle by a slip knot that would come free at the first tug.

Only the owner was in the store, a little lame, gray-haired man answering to the name of Boden. He had lived in this wild country a good many years and had acquired the protective secrecy of the settler who intends to keep out of trouble.

The Indian bought tobacco, rolled a cigarette, smoked it. Boden knew the impassive Choctaw was awaiting a death sentence but it was not to be discussed.

The trader mentioned the heavy rain during the past week. Hightower grunted. After a long silence Cleburn referred to the hunt for the Hickorys. Boden made no comment. If he had ever heard that they were on the dodge, he gave no sign of it. He had not seen any of them for several months.

Outside Hightower saw Marshal Carson looking at his horse. The officer turned to the Choctaw. "Yore horse is some gaunted," he said. "Looks like you been traveling quite a ways."

Cleburn told his story. "You're Cleburn Hightower, aren't you?" he asked.

"Yes."

"I thought so. Well, I don't mind telling you that I've been close to these two gents for two-three days. But I lost them in the hills. Not more than three hours ago a fellow rode in here and bought provisions. I'm going to ask Boden about that now."

Hightower went back into the trading post with the officer.

Carson did not waste time. "A fellow came in here and bought supplies a couple of hours ago," he said bluntly. "Who was he?"

The trader feigned innocence. "Some strange fellow from the hills."

"Don't lie to me, Boden," the marshal blustered. "I know who he was—Green Scott. The Hickorys are killers and robbers, and we aim to clean up the whole nest of them. Tell us what you know, unless you want to tell it to Judge Parker."

As it turned out, Boden did not know a great deal. Green Scott had ridden in and bought coffee, flour, a slab of bacon, and some dried beans. He did not say who they were for, but the storekeeper admitted it might be for the Hickorys. He had taken the road back toward his own place over the Black Fork. Neither the marshal nor Hightower had ever been there. Boden gave them directions.

Carson did not wait for his posse, which was combing the Buffalo Creek country. With Cleburn he set out for the Scott place.

At their knock Mrs. Scott came to the door of the two-room settler's house. Her husband, she said, was hoeing corn.

Green Scott showed surprise when Carson hailed him. A law-abiding citizen, he had bought the supplies for the Hickorys because he was afraid of the outlaws. His story was simple enough. Cass Hickory and Rush Greer had called him out of the house and told him they needed supplies. They had made it clear he must get them.

"Where are they camped?" Carson inquired.

Scott shook his head. "I don't know. They came out of the brush and met me on the road from town where it crosses the Fork."

"Which way did they go when they left you?"

"Headed back into the brush, like they might be making for the Kiamichis."

.....

To Carson and Hightower that looked reasonable. They did not believe Scott would lie to them.

"Didn't say a thing that might give you a line on their camp?" Carson persisted.

Scott hesitated. "Something one of them said made me think they were only waiting for the grub to light out."

"For where?"

"He didn't say. It was Cass Just mentioned that I wouldn't be seeing him again and that I was to forget I had seen them. Then he laughed and said your posse was getting too friendly."

Carson frowned. "We were combing the Kiamichis yesterday. They might of looked down on us from a ledge while we passed below."

"Might be," Scott agreed.

"Question is, where do they go from here?"

"Maybe in Hackberry Creek country," the Indian suggested. "Plenty brush there."

Hackberry Creek was their home country. It was likely that they might hole up there for a time. "What say we ride to Four Corners and see what we can pick up there?" he suggested to Hightower.

The Choctaw nodded.

They reached Four Corners after dark. The trading post was closed so they rode past it and stopped at the house of Doctor Taylor. They learned that two men had come out of the store, mounted horses tied to the rack, and ridden away two hours earlier. It was dark and he had not been close enough to recognize them. The odd feature about the incident was that there had been no light in the store. He had seen nothing of Cal Judson, but somebody inside had closed the door after the men. The sound of the bolt being pushed home had reached him.

"I reckon we'd better see Judson," the marshal said grimly.

outed out of bed by the shouts of the officer, Judson could not conceal his uneasiness at the sight of them.

"Thrown in with outlaws and killers, have you, Cal?"

Judson shivered in the cool night air. "No, I haven't," he said between chattering teeth. "Why?"

"Two of the Hickory gang were visiting you an hour ago—having a confab in the dark with you." "Can't help it if men like that make me sell them food!" the trader said.

"Then come clean. You'll be in deep if you don't look out, Cal. Spill what you know."

"I don't know anything, except that Jake Hickory dropped in today and told me to tell young Cass and Rush Greer if they showed up that they would find a letter in the old gum tree post-office explaining what they were to do," Judson replied sourly. Whatever he said was likely to bring him trouble.

"What's he mean—the old gum tree postoffice?"

"I wouldn't know, marshal."

"Must be a hollow tree they have used before."

"No gum trees on Hackberry Creek," Cleburn said. "Only gums are in cane brakes around Sunk Bayou."

"Where is Sunk Bayou?"

"South of J. A. B. Sometimes we ride there to snake cow out of mire. Not often. Easy get lost in swamp."

Carson stared at the Indian, thoughts stabbing through his mind. Nobody would expect the Hickorys to hole up at the edge of the J. A. B. ranch. He asked:

"Do you ride deep into the swamp or just down to where it begins to get boggy?"

"Never far into the bayou. The cattle don't graze there. Feed no good."

"Let's get down to the cane brakes," Carson said. "Maybe we'll find tracks."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1943.

Now is the time to be doing the work that will make next Labor day a real holiday.

One trouble, in the proposed trial of Hitler, will be to find a jury that never read anything about him.

A report from Sicily says American engineers laid 21 miles of road in 24 hours—which evidences how lightly WPA influence affected national ability to get necessary things done quickly.

Bond Buyers Helping To Win War

EVERY buyer of a War Bond has a right to feel that he or she helped to bring about the surrender of Italy, to make possible the steadily gaining power of the Allies, and to assure eventual defeat of Germany and Japan.

Many things are necessary to successful prosecution of a great war—and one of these things is MONEY, with which to pay for the production of war materials, meet the costs of equipping and maintaining great armies and provide the constant flow of planes, ships, tanks and guns without which our fighting forces would be helpless in either defensive or offensive action.

It is for the people back home to supply the money to carry on the war and if there should be failure in this part of the task there would be failure all along the line.

The fact that there are a few persons in every community who make no secret of the fact that they have not bought any War Bonds, or have cashed them soon after purchase, should not influence anyone else to follow a similar course—nor is it likely to, for a vast majority of people are earnestly and patriotically responding to the nation's call and are regularly investing in War Bonds to the extent of their ability.

Many are not only investing surplus earnings, above actual living expenses, but are also delving into savings accounts in order to buy more bonds during this Third War Loan campaign than would otherwise be possible.

As in the matter of strikes, slowdowns and absenteeism in war industries, which involve only small minorities, those who disregard their plain duty of buying War Bonds represent such a small percentage of the population that they need be given little thought—for, after all, it is up to the 95 per cent majority to make up the share of the laggards, as usual.

Quick success of this War Bond campaign will take place with the surrender of Italy as a decisive factor in shaking Nazi morale and hastening the end of the war.

The slogan is "Back the Attack" by buying an extra bond NOW—but buy more than ONE extra bond, if you can, in as large denominations as possible.

Urge Sales Tax Reduction

POSSIBLY it is too much to expect, but it may at least be hoped that Governor Bricker can quiet the buzzing of the presidential bee sufficiently to hear the insistent demand from over the state that he take some action looking toward legislative approval of reduction in the retail sales tax to an actual 2 per cent from the present so-called "3 per cent sales tax"—which is in reality much higher than 3 per cent.

Attention is again directed to this subject by an appeal just made to the governor by Mansfield local of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers union, urging that the sales tax be reduced.

Governor Bricker has thus far shown no inclination to call the legislature into special session for this purpose. Possibly he has not yet heard from enough people on the subject of what they think about piling up an immense surplus in the state treasury at the expense of already overburdened taxpayers.

Space for Postoffice Patrons

REMOVAL of parking meters from the West Fourth street frontage of the postoffice building should not be construed as intention to permit return of long-time parking in that area.

By establishing a 10-minute parking limit alongside and in front of the postoffice, city council makes it clearly understood that this space is intended for the convenience of postoffice patrons whose errand sometimes requires no more than a minute and seldom more than a few minutes.

Curtailment In Ice Deliveries

ANNOUNCEMENT of curtailment in home deliveries of ice, attributed to labor shortage, directs attention to the fact that, despite rapid extension of electric refrigeration, many families still depend on ice as a refrigerant and are considerably inconvenienced by suspension of ice deliveries to homes in some parts of the city.

One Mansfield woman complains that daily ice deliveries are being made to some places of business, but that "we housewives who cook for defense workers can't get any." "For awhile we could get ice on Mondays and Thursdays each week," she says, "but now none at all, and I fear ptomaine poisoning will be the lot of some of us."

Delivery problems are admittedly serious but it would appear that decision to eliminate long-established service involving an essential commodity is a matter of considerable community importance.

Ernie Pyle Back Home Briefly

READERS of Ernie Pyle's articles, which appear on this page, are beginning to feel so well acquainted with him that many express lively personal interest in where he is, what he is doing, and where he plans to go next.

Just now, after getting back from Sicily on a Clipper plane, he's "resting up" in New York and Washington for a few days before going to his home in Albuquerque, N. M., for a month or so—and then he'll be hitting off into the southwest Pacific to tell us what's going on there.

Today he winds up his series on work of American engineers in Sicily—and if you think you've been working hard, read about what some of those young Americans did and you'll feel rested.

Picked up by the Saturday Evening Post as a bit of bar-room conversation: "What's the government trying to do—run the country?"

Some weak-minded persons are locked up, some are harmless and well-behaved, and others sound auto horns needlessly.

THE FRUITS OF VICTORY

Collapse of Italy Demonstrates Advantages of Unified Program

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

SURRENDER of Italy is a good deal like the Christmas present which we knew we should find in our stocking but which is none the less a matter of much rejoicing.

Capitulation of this first member of the Axis to go under in the Allied flood represents a military triumph, but the moral effect may be even greater. This is particularly true down the Caucasus into the Middle East.

There was the gallant Allied defense which stopped Rommel's drive toward the Suez canal. Then came Libya, Tripoli, Tunisia and Sicily. All these contributed to the present victory.

Many advantages lie in this triumph, but it seems to me that the vital consideration is that it represents the liquidation of Axis power in the whole Mediterranean theater.

One thing the Allies have had to keep constantly to the fore in their plans—that control of the Mediterranean was essential for final victory. Had Hitler broken through the Balkans into the lower Caucasus and Middle East, he had the overrun Egypt, there's no telling to what straits he might have driven the United Nations by this time.

The preliminaries to the conquest of Italy are great pages in the history of a global war which undoubtedly is ushering in a new epoch in the progress of mankind. It is the record of a really united effort, in which all the Allies played their parts to the limits of their ability.

There was the stonewall stand of the magnificent Red forces at Stalingrad, where Hitler broke in, back last winter. Had he won there he likely would have swept

Thus the Nazi fuchrer's whole vast eastern front, and its continuation down into the cockpit of the Balkans, is rocking under the impact, direct or indirect, of the various Allied operations.

The efforts of each Ally are bolstering those of the partners. It's important that we keep this firmly in mind, in the interests of unity.

Italy doesn't of course, provide a spring-board for direct invasion of Germany with ground forces. However, it will be a magnificent base for operations, once the peninsula has been cleared of Nazis.

If the Hitlerites decide to defend the strong line of the Po river across northern Italy, there is likely to be bitter fighting.

It seems unlikely that the Allies will encounter heavily sustained resistance until the northern part of the country is reached.

Possession of Italy as a base naturally will permit of numerous operations. One of the greatest gains will be acquisition of airfields which will bring Allied bombing fleets much nearer eastern Germany.

We shall be able to comb this hitherto comparatively isolated area and reach handily such vital targets as the enormous Skoda armament works in Czechoslovakia—one of Hitler's chief sources of supply now that so many of his war industries in the Ruhr lie in ruins.

It's a SOFT HEARTED SISSY even though I talk rough at times. My heart is always for the downcast and oppressed. They can have my shirt and usually do. And I have discovered that a lot of my fellow Americans are similarly constituted.

For instance, consider the post-war plans they've been orating about. They listen lovely and will doubtless be quoted in high school graduation speeches from now on. But I've a hunch we need to put a new tap on our gushing good will. Or we'll be sorry.

According to said terms these United States will be one big Land of Canaan where the boys come marching home. Everybody's going to feast on free waffles and creamed chicken and life will be one long hi-de-ho. Also, say the enthusiastic exponents of peerless peace, there'll be a job for every man. No one will ever again have to exert himself looking for a chance to sweat. He'll just automatically walk into a $100 a week position and from then on everything will be duck soup and gravy.

The super-planners are overlooking one fundamental biological fact, namely—a large part of the human race is born allergic to labor in any form. Myself included. There's nothing I would rather do than stretch out under a convenient pine tree with nothing on my mind but woodchicks.

So far fate and an unkind economic order have kept me hustling. But I still hope to die luxuriously in the county poor farm. And I might add that the same sentiments beat beneath the majority of shirts I've met.

At which point let me state that if you think I'm kidding, get over it. I'm not. There are things in human nature that the Four Freedoms will never dent. And foremost is an urgent need for a swift kick in the pants to keep us going.

Nor will any scheme for democracy which anybody can fabricate ever eliminate this tendency. We've got to have challenges and competition and they've got to be tough. This idea that no one should grow up the hard way is bushwa. There was never a man nor woman worth a nickel, who didn't grow up the hard way—who didn't know weariness, humiliation, discouragement and gobs of frustration.

Mind you I'm all for peace and

Expansion of Tire Companies In South Is Disapproved By Jeffers

WASHINGTON—One of the last things Big Bill Jeffers did before announcing his resignation as rubber administrator was to sit as arbiter in a hot and very important session between rubber workers and rubber manufacturers over the question of constructing more tire factories.

The Big Four rubber companies (Goodyear, Firestone, Goodrich and U. S. Rubber) had drawn up elaborate plans for new tire factories in new locations, chiefly in Texas and the south. Apparently they wanted to break away from Akron. The United Rubber Workers, worried over maintaining union membership in the south, was much opposed.

So Jeffers listened to both sides of the story.

United Rubber Workers President S. H. Dalrymple came loaded with facts and figures. He said the rubber companies had tons of tire-making equipment stored away. All they had to do was wipe off the dust, not to build new plants, using scarce strategic materials.

Spokesmen for the rubber companies admitted they had a lot of tire equipment but claimed it was not enough to manufacture 30,000,000 passenger tires needed for 1944.

Jeffers Stomps.

JEFFERS listened attentively, then swung his weight vigorously on the side of labor. He put his foot down categorically on the industry's expansion program in the south.

"Some plants will have to be expanded," he said, "but do it in existing locations. Furthermore, some of your plants now doing war work will be converted back again."

"Take Kelly-Springfield in Cumberland (Maryland)," Jeffers continued. "They converted to an ammunition plant and set aside a lot of their tire-making equipment. But Ordnance has now abandoned the plant, and it can get back to production of tires. The same thing is happening at Eau Claire, Wisconsin."

Incidentally, Jeffers was irked because the rubber companies sent their third-string men, instead of top executives. He felt strongly that for such an important meeting the industry should be represented by such men as Harvey Firestone, Jr., or W. J. Thomas, president of Firestone, or P. W. Litchfield, president of Goodyear.

With a scowl at the industry's representatives, Jeffers made a crack against the practice of driving workers hard by something like the infamous Bedaux methods.

"What you fellows need," said Jeffers, "is less stopwatch and more common sense."

Warns Labor.

THEN he shook a warning finger at Rubber Workers' Dalrymple. "But you fellows have got to do your stuff if we are going to produce these 30,000,000 tires this year. You have got to pull strong in the harness."

Before the meeting was over industry representatives had agreed to abandon their pretentious program for expansion. All of the Big Four had big programs, one company planning an expansion of 100 per cent. Jeffers told them to go back, recheck their figures and return with a reasonable program.

Labor leaders went away delighted. After the meeting Jeffers leaned back in his swivel chair.

"I haven't dealt with rubber workers much before," he said, "but I have dealt with railroad workers, and they are all the same. I think the boys are going to do their stuff."

FDR's Dilemma.

SOME of the turmoil regarding Sumner Welles and the appointment of a new undersecretary of state can now be explained by the following events inside the White House.

When Secretary Hull stood behind a cabinet meeting in mid-August and lengthily told the president that either he or Welles must go, the president immediately sent for Welles and broke the news. This, he said, was one of the toughest things he had had to do in his entire life. But he urged that Welles go to Russia with Anthony Eden to do some long-distance patching up with Molotov and Stalin.

Welles, terribly upset by this abrupt dismissal, was unable to give the president a definite answer. He resigned immediately, but was inclined to feel that anything he did in Russia would be undercut by Secretary Hull, partly because of Hull's dislike of Welles, partly because of his lack of enthusiasm for Russia.

Secretary Hull, however, assured the president he would be delighted to have his former undersecretary of state undertake the Russian mission.

Hull Changes Mind.

ALL THIS occurred before word leaked out that Welles was being ousted. Since that leak, with its accompanying press reaction, Mr. Hull has changed his mind. He has felt more bitter than ever toward his ex-undersecretary, and is upset over the severe criticism hurled at the state department by James LeCron and by editorial comment.

More recently, therefore, Hull has indicated that he, not Welles, is the one to confer with Foreign Ministers Eden and Molotov.

That is the dilemma in which the president finds himself. Personally the president has felt that the younger, more vigorous Welles rather than 72-year-old Hull was the man to send on a difficult mission of this kind, which may entail several thousand miles of air travel. That is the reason for the significant silence regarding Welles' resignation and his successor.

ERNIE PYLE Roving Reporter

Wind-Up of Series on Engineers Introduces a Few of the Fast Workers.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—I don't know what it is that impels some men, either in peace or in wartime, to extend themselves beyond all expectations or what holds back other men to do just as little as possible. In any group of soldiers you'll find both kinds.

The work of combat engineers usually comes in spurts, and it is so terribly vital when it does come, that the percentage of fast workers is probably higher than in most other branches. I've never seen men work any harder than the engineers I was with.

On the Point Calava road crater job there were two men I couldn't take my eyes off of. They worked like demons. Both were corporals and had little to gain by their extraordinary labors, except maybe some slight future promotion. And I doubt that's what drove them.

Such men must be driven by the nature of their job, by that mystic spark which forces some men to give all they've got, all the time.

These two men were Gordon Uttech, of Merrill, Wis., and Alvin Tolliver, of Alamosa, Colo. Both were air compressor operators and rock drillers. Uttech worked all night and when the night shift was relieved for breakfast, he refused to go.

He worked on throughout the day without sleep and in the final hours of the job, he went down under the frail bridge to check the sag and strain, as heavier and heavier vehicles passed over it.

Tolliver, too, worked without ceasing, never resting, never stopping, even to wipe off the sweat that made his stripped body look as though it were coated with olive oil. I never saw him stop once throughout the day. He seemed to work without instruction from anybody, knowing what jobs to do and doing them alone. He raved the great chattering jackhammers into the rock. He spread and reworked his air hose. He changed drills. He regulated his compressor. He drove eye-hooks into the rock, chopped down big planks to fit the rocky ledges he'd created.

Always he worked as though the outcome of the war depended on him alone. I couldn't help be proud of these men, who gave more than was asked.

BEFORE ending this series on the engineers, I'd like to mention a few of the officers—for after all, the poor officers deserve some credit once in a while.

The whole battalion, known as the 10th Engineers of the Third Division, is commanded by Lieut. Col. Leonard Bingham. He is a regular army man and therefore his home is wherever he is, but Lieut. Robert Springmeyer is from Provo, Utah. He's an engineer by profession and a recent father. When he got the parenthood, he somehow managed to buy a box of cigars, and he ran out of recipients when the box was about half gone. So now, after a long grueling job of work, he comes in, shaves, takes a helmet bath, puts on clean clothes, then sits down against a tree and lights a big gift cigar in his own honor, the rascal.

Lieut. Gilmore Reid, is from Indianapolis. His dad runs the "Purity Coda & Chip Co." which makes potato chips. Young Reid is an artist, and also a railroad hobbyist. He studies railroads with the same verve that some people collect stamps.

He once did a painting of a freight train at a small midwest station, and when he got word recently that it had been printed in color in a railroad magazine, he felt he'd practically reached the zenith of his heart's desire.

THAT'S all on the engineers. If you wake up some morning and find that the Germans have blown a big hole in your back yard, or booby-trapped your refrigerator, just give us a ring and we'll be right over with a bulldozer and some dynamite, and fix you up.

CHILD CONSERVATION MEMBERS HAVE MEET

Mrs. Robert Bair, Mrs. Orville Kibler Hostesses at First Fall Session; Guest Speaker Is John Eisaman.

MRS. ROBERT BAIR, 453 West Dickson avenue, was hostess Thursday afternoon at the first meeting held by members of the Child Conservation club. Mrs. Orville Kibler was associate hostess.

The business meeting was presided over by Mrs. John Harrison. Mrs. Harrison presented the programs for the new year and named committees.

Officers who will serve during the ensuing year include Mrs. John Harrison as president; Mrs. Carl Brock, vice president; Mrs. Robert Bair, secretary; Mrs. Robert Dunson, treasurer, and Mrs. Earl Boals, scribe.

John Eisaman, school attendance officer, talked to the club members of his work in the city schools. He stressed the influence of the home and the parents' interest in the child's education as being an important factor in relation to the attitude the child takes toward his schooling.

Mr. Eisaman was introduced by the program chairman, Mrs. Brock. The Oct. 14 meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Donald Hartman, 213 Rhein avenue.

Piano Student Given Recital at Women's Club

Miss Helen Hagelbarger, assisted by Miss Frances Carter, contralto, was presented in a piano recital by Mrs. H. H. Clingan, certified teacher of the Ohio Music Teachers' association, at the Women's Club Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

Miss Hagelbarger opened her program of music with Bach's Bourree and "Sonata in C Major" by Mozart.

Miss Carter followed the piano selections with "The Almond Tree" by Schumann, and "Thou Art So Like a Flower," by Rubinstein.

"Morning," by Grieg, "Polonaise in A Major Op. 40, No. 1" by Chopin, and "Rustles of Spring" by Sinding, were in Miss Hagelbarger's second group of selections. She also played "Here's One," a Negro spiritual arranged by W. G. Still.

"The Lord's Prayer" by Bach-Gounod was presented by Miss Carter, after which Miss Hagelbarger completed her program with "Spanish Dance" by Granados, "May Night" by Palmgren, and "Goliwogg's Cake-Walk" by Debussy.

Miss Hagelbarger left Mansfield this morning for Hiram college, near Cleveland, where she has a four-year scholarship.

Relief Corps Holds Meeting

The McLaughlin Woman's Relief corps held its regular meeting Wednesday evening in the Memorial hall. Mrs. Helen Glathart presided and conducted the business session.

Mrs. Mae Lambert, a new candidate, was elected to membership. Department Aides were appointed for the ensuing year. They include Nora Bentley, Julia Grandstaff, Anna Butts, Nellie Harrison and Irma Locke.

Ethel Constance was appointed chairman of the national defense committee. A gain of 330 new members was reported for the state of Ohio.

Troops Train In Corn; U. S. Pays Farmers For Crop

LEBANON, Tenn. — (UP) — It would be some war if the enemy paid landowners for damage to their crops—but that's just what Uncle Sam is doing for farmers in the middle Tennessee maneuver area when trucks and tanks and marching men run fields and woodlands.

One of the busiest offices here now is the rents and claims board of the Fourth Service command, where claims are filed.

"Claims run all the way from a broken tombstone to a ruined cornfield," said Lt. Col. H. B. Cornwell, officer in charge.

"Many times the claims are large," Cornwell said. "There was a farmer the other day who filed one for $2,000."

When farmers report crop losses or damage, investigators look into the matter. One farm the scene of a two-day battle, had the following damages:

Four hundred rods of barbed wire damaged, 500 line posts, 20 corner fence posts, five gates and five gateposts destroyed. In addition there were 100 foxholes to be filled, lespedeza, corn, alfalfa, pasture, gardens, chickens and chicken yards total loss.

NIGHT LIFE

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA — INS — New Guinea has developed a night life of its own. If he has friends enough, a soldier seeking distraction at this base has the choice of up to a dozen "night clubs" he may visit. They perch on the low hills around the airfields.

Built from palm logs and packing cases by the officers themselves at little cost to Uncle Sam, most are grass thatched huts with a hard earth floor, a bar (usually without bottles) at one end, a book case, a ping pong table, easy chairs, and sometimes a miniature dance floor.

PAULINE DOKLOVIC REVEALS MARRIAGE

Couple Exchange Wedding Vows In Cincinnati, July 24; Announcement Party Given at Home of Bride's Mother Thursday Night.

MRS. GLEN SEATON, the former Miss Pauline Doklovic, was a guest of honor last evening at the home of her mother, Mrs. Ed Doklovic, 289 Grace street, when she revealed her marriage to Mr. Seaton, an event of July 24. The couple was wed in Cincinnati.

Announcement was made when an alarm clock rang and the group followed the direction from which the sound came. Miss Marjorie Zimmerman read the announcement.

Miss Zimmerman and Mrs. Joe Russ won prizes in the games which were played by the 17 guests in attendance. Guests also made a bride's book for the honoree.

Gifts were found by the recent bride by following a string to which the hidden objects were attached.

At a late hour luncheon was served from a long table centered with a three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom and two mixed bouquets. Pink and white were predominant in the color scheme.

Associate hostess at the party was Mrs. Edwin Stitts. Mr. Seaton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Seaton, Ashland road. The newly married couple is at home at 99 Luther place.

Society Meets With Mrs. Merkle

Members of the Mary Markley society of St. Paul Lutheran church were guests of Mrs. Carl Merkle, 176 1/2 South Diamond street, for their regular September meeting.

Miss Bertene Sawyer presented the topic, "Protestant Women Working Together." Miss Katherine Miller presided at the business session when members voted to change the meeting night to the second Wednesday evening of each month.

The evening was spent making scrap books for the Oesterlin Orphans' home in Springfield, Mrs. Fern Heathcote of Washington, D. C., was a guest.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 13 at the home of Miss Miller, 335 Central avenue. At that time, Mrs. H. L. Gilbert will present the topic.

Love Not Part Of Common-Law Marriages

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
"Dear Miss Fairfax," a mother writes me. "My three boys are children of my legal marriage; when my husband and I were divorced he took two of the boys and I kept the youngest."
"For the past four years, I've been living with a man as his common-law wife. We have two children. As he doesn't like children, he suggested we allow his sister to adopt the two boys, one the child of my marriage and the other his child. He wants us to keep the little girl of whom he is fond."
"When I ask him to get a marriage license and make our relationship legal, he says he can't afford it or some such reason. We have a nice apartment and plenty to eat. If I need money for clothes or essentials he tells me to ask my mother to give it to me but she is unable to do so. He gives his own mother money every week and the balance of his pay envelope, not needed for food and rent, he spends on his own clothes or for beer to treat the entire neighborhood."
"The job I had before my marriage is still open to me. It would be sufficient to support my little girl and myself, and my mother will take care of the baby while I go to work. If I take a job, I'll have to leave this man, as he doesn't approve of women working away from home. He never takes me anywhere. Do you think I ought to take the job now or stay on and see if he'll marry me? We're both under 30; he's in 4-F in the draft, so I know he'll never be called."
When I get a letter like this, I can't help wondering—and that with plenty of sympathy—what ever induces a woman to accept a common-law marriage. It's so often a case of jumping from the frying pan into the fire.
This correspondent doesn't tell me why she left her husband for this man. Plenty of other women who've written me similar letters have declared they left decent homes and husbands because they imagined they were in love with the man who offered them a common-law marriage.
Let's look at this case realistically. She is not getting even necessary clothes or an allowance for essentials, though this man has money to treat the neighborhood to beer. If he employed a domestic, he would not only be forced to give her food and shelter but wages as well! This common-law marriage provides him with a woman to do his bidding at less than it would cost him to have a paid servant. And that may be his very way of looking at the matter. If there was any genuine love on his part, he'd have no hesitancy about marriage, of course.
To her I say: take back the job you had before you were married. At least you'll be paid for it. But, of course, if you're going to delude yourself any further about this so-called common-law husband, you have no use for advice.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Sept. 11.
A sudden or whirlwind precipitation of unusual and unforeseen events mark this day, which may be memorable for its far-reaching effect on the future life and its destinies. Under the spur of such excitement much may be accomplished if a firm grip on the acts, words and emotion be rigidly held, without tempestuous, erratic or wild flare-ups. Make changes with care, travel, make new contracts or agreements, although in business and not in the romantic affiliations, which have sensational angles. Shun all sorts of extravagances and excesses.
Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a sudden and radical change in the tide of events, which may have an important and memorable reaction on the future life. All things new or novel should flourish, with new contracts, changes, travel and fresh fields of activity in both business and private interest. However, there is more progress and satisfaction in well and cautiously managed business affairs.
A child born on this day will have original and versatile talents, with brilliant ideas and propositions of scientific value, but a tendency to extravagance and self-indulgence may contribute to its undoing.

"Pitfalls of Love"
(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers, By ADELE GARRISON)

With hands that were distinctly trembling, Mary put down the note, I had given her from Marion, and catching up the little black code book the two girls had used when they were children, she began to rattle its pages.
"You're on the track of something!" I asked hopefully.
Her eyes were filled with excitement as she nodded assent.
"That first stuff doesn't mean anything, except that the misspelled words mean just the opposite of what she says. The people are not nice or kind, and she doesn't feel safe. But I think that's just camouflage, so that if the note were picked up by one of her captors, they wouldn't suspect she was trying to tip off anybody to anything, but would figure out that she was a bit homesick."
"But this other stuff at the last is something else again. Let me see—silver cross, gold bracelet, opal ring, amber necklace my grandmother gave me. All these have a meaning. I'm sure, when I find them. 'Ah, here they are! Auntie Madge, do you mind if I puzzle over these a bit? You see each one of those words is carried through three other words to the real meaning. For instance, silver cross might be indexed as coffee pot, coffee pot as broom, and broom as tea tray, which would index the real meaning. Those aren't the true keys—I'll have to look them up—but they'll serve to show you what the set-up is. Marion was quite ingenious, and it will take me a little time."
"I imagine you may have all the time you need," I said. "Isn't there anything I can do for you?"
"Yes. You can tell me what happened down at that hotel. I know Olina got back safely, of course, but I haven't had any details, and I'll be able to work at this much faster, if my curiosity is appeased. So be a good aunt, and give me two minutes. Grandpa Spencer is telling Ronald and Noel in there. I know, and of course Uncle Dicky knows everything."
"Must Be Brief."
"Very well," I assented, "but it will have to be brief. Father is counting upon your work on these."
"He's going to have it," Mary said. "And I only need a few minutes. So please hurry!"
It was closer to three minutes than two when I finished my tale of Olina's delivery of Georges' money to Ruth Hayes, of my adventure as a disguised chambermaid, and of the fact that Ruth even now was in residence at our hotel. But I said nothing of my discovery of the chloroform in Ruth Hayes' bag. That, I knew, my father did not wish mention as yet to anyone.
"Whew!" Mary gave a low whistle when I had finished. "The lady gets around, doesn't she? But you think this afternoon will wind her up?"
"I truly hope so," I answered fervently, but Mary was already deep in the little black code book.

Vegetables Do Enliven Meals

By BETSY NEWMAN
The good old tried and true vegetables—the root vegetables, which some of us have never been too keen about—may be the backbone of our menus now. We'll have to develop new ways of serving them. I'll see what I can do to help you and myself.

Today's Menu.
Macaroni and Cheese
Carrot Scallop
Sliced or Stewed Tomatoes
Turnip Sticks
Baked Date Pudding
Tea or Coffee
Carrot Scallop.

1 egg
3 cups raw carrots, cut fine
1 cup milk
1 Tbsp. melted fat

Beat egg slightly, add milk, grated, ground or finely chopped carrots, fat and salt and pepper. Pour into greased baking dish and bake in moderate oven until set.

Baked Date Pudding.
1/4 cup sugar
2 Tbsp. milk
1 tsp. vanilla
1 egg
1 cup sifted flour
1/4 tsp. salt
1 tsp. all-phosphate baking powder
1 cup sliced dates
1 cup chopped Brazil nuts

Combine sugar, milk, vanilla and egg; beat well. Sift flour, baking powder and salt; add to egg mixture with dates and Brazil nuts and blend well. Pour into a 6-inch square pan and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 to 40 minutes. Serve with cream. Serves 6.

frightened and uneasy. Fear government vessel is on their track. Think they are ready to have me walk the plank if vessel heaves in sight, so there will be no evidence against them."
She stopped abruptly with a choke in her voice and the horror in her eyes was reflected, I knew, in mine.
"Poor, brave kid!" she said, and there was reverence in her voice.
"They evidently realize the net is closing in," I said.
"But Auntie Madge," she cried, "they mustn't move so fast against those devils! Grandpa Spencer must wait until Marion is safe before he makes his final move."
"He will, dear, never fear," I said, finding it hard to reassure Mary when my own pulses were pounding with fear for Marion.
"Is that all about the silver cross?"
"Yes, but just listen to this one which stems from the 'gold bracelet'."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

QUEER BIDS MAY WORK
Bidders who "stick to the book" and never try any funny business may avoid certain disasters, but they do not get the same thrill as those who act according to their imagination. On the other hand, it costs something to get those thrills, as a terrific risk is sometimes involved in them.

As luck would have it, the long spades were held by East instead of the opening leader, who picked the 5 of the unbid diamonds. The Q force the K, whereupon South took two high clubs and gave West another with the Q. Thereupon West led the diamond A and then the 9 — bad bridge — which the 10 won. The 8 was then good.

journey in the direction of Lake Geneva after a brief rest.
(The office of war information quoted a Berlin broadcast as saying that the party of the crown princess traveled in "two big touring cars followed by a truck with gasoline.")

"The crown princess was accompanied by a friend of the royal house," the broadcast added. "At the border the princess was received by the military authorities."

Prince Umberto, who is 39 and the only son of Vittorio Emanuele, always has been considered lukewarm toward Fascism. At one time he was said to be headed for a peace party of younger non-Fascists. He once refused an invitation to Berlin.

Umberto had held the rank of general in the Italian army since 1941, and in April, 1942, he was placed in command of troops in central and southern Italy.

His wife is a sister of King Leopold of Belgium. They were married in 1930.

Following Mussolini's ouster, travelers reaching Switzerland from Italy told of crowds in Italian cities shouting for Badoglio's resignation and his replacement by Umberto.

Vittoria Emanuele succeeded to the throne when his father, King Umberto, was assassinated on July 29, 1900.

EMPTIES JAILS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (INS)—The old adage—the devil finds work for idle hands to do—has further support in the statistics of the Indiana prisons. Since the war began the Hoosier prison population has decreased by more than 1,000.

John H. Klingner, director of corrections in the state department of public welfare, remarked: "These who got into trouble in previous years because they could not make a living, now are at work and living quiet lives." Klingner said.

He also pointed out that a very large percentage of persons in the age groups most often at fault of the law are now serving in the armed forces.

ARMY WEDDING FITS THE NAME

CAMP STEWART, Ga.—(INS)—Have you ever seen a wedding in which nine lieutenants and a colonel—and no one else—participated?

When Lieut. Alice Cecil, of the Nurse Corps, married Lieut. Roy C. Daniel, jr., of Camp Crockett, Tex., at Camp Stewart, Lieut. A. E. Zund, chaplain, performed the ceremony.

Lieut. Helen Moore was maid of honor and Lieut. Wanda Trojan, bridesmaid. They are both of the Nurse Corps.

Lieut. L. S. Daniel, M. C., was best man, while Lieut. Wier Barrett and Lieut. Catherine Twomey served as ushers.

Lieut. Amee Harrington rendered a solo.

And, Col. Thomas M. Chaney, surgeon of Stewart's station hospital and commanding officer of the bride, gave her away.

conditions or fire. Many farmers don't want to risk seeding a large wheat acreage without assurance that they will get an adequate return from it, committeemen said.

Because of the cold, wet growing season this year, nearly half of the county farmers who were insured collected benefits for grain that was damaged or lost, it was said.

Wheat sowing is expected to get under way in the county next week, but County Agent George B. Ganyard hopes there won't be much land seeded until after Sept. 26, the Hessian fly-free date in the county. Wheat seeded before that time is more likely to become infested with the Hessian fly, he said.

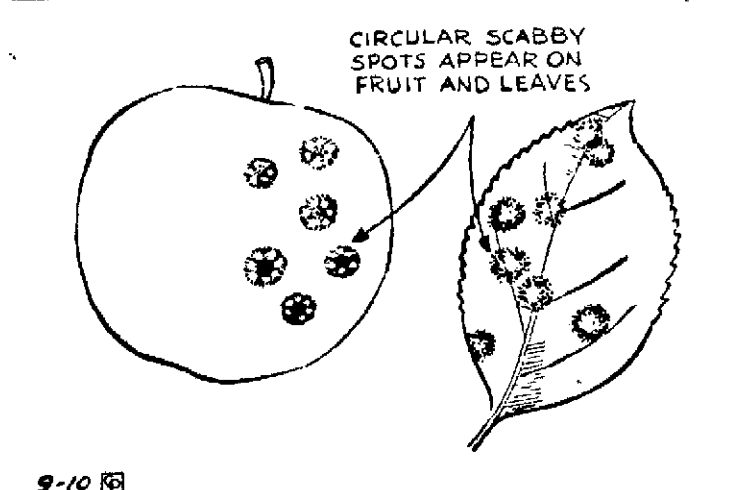

The late corn and soybean harvest may help the wheat prospects for 1944 by forcing farmers to delay their seeding until late this month or early in October, the county agent said.

Hessian fly infestation in the county was low this year, dropping to about four per cent, Ganyard said.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Apple Scab In the Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

IF YOU have been proud of the fact that you have apple trees in your Victory garden mature enough to produce fruit, your joy may have been marred because the apples were scabby. This is something you will have to do something about, for scab is one of the most common diseases of apples.

Apple scab is caused by a fungus parasite. As shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, scab affects the fruit, leaves and twigs, but it is rarely found on the twigs except in the case of a few very susceptible varieties.

Ordinarily, the fungus which causes the disease passes the winter in infected leaves on the ground. In the spring spores are discharged and, being very light, are carried to the leaves on the lower branches of the trees.

Sanitation around fruit trees is one method of controlling apple scab. This means destroying all old leaves gathered off the ground by burning them. Then be ready in the spring to spray the apple trees with either lime sulfur or Bordeaux mixture. This pre-bloom spraying should be done if possible just preceding a rainy period, since the first discharge of scab spores will probably take place during this period and the spray must be on the leaves before the spores germinate in order to be of any value whatever.

The giant starling flocks in the United States are all descended from 60 birds introduced into Central Park, New York, from Europe in 1890.

Blood Donor Registration List
Stays at 40 Short.

Forty more blood donors are needed to fill the Sept. 15 schedule of the Red Cross Mobile Blood Donor Unit which will be in Mansfield on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, the blood donor committee said today.

The schedule for Tuesday is completely filled, but more volunteers are needed for Wednesday to take care of any last-minute cancellations. Seven hundred blood donor cards were mailed to prospective donors, and all but 150 have been returned.

During the summer the mobile unit has been located at the John Simpson Junior high school, but will now be at the R. B. Gardner building on Park avenue west.

FREEZE CIRCULATION, SLASH AD SPACE TO MEET NEWSPRINT CUT

At least four daily newspapers in widely separated parts of the nation today announced voluntary reductions in advertising space and freezing of circulation to meet new government demands curtailing newsprint.

The Philadelphia (Pa.) Daily News announced that it had slashed display advertising 20 per cent and classified advertising 50 per cent, in addition to a 33 1/2 per cent cut in its news columns and a 20 per cent reduction in comics.

The Omaha (Nebr.) World-Herald to avoid rationing of display advertising cut off 4,500 subscribers in outlying districts.

It also limited "help wanted" advertisements to three inches. The ads are not carried in Sunday editions outside the city unless a special request for the service is made.

The Waynesboro, (Pa.) Record-Herald froze its circulation due to the reduction of newsprint supply and increased its subscription rates from three cents per copy to four cents.

The reductions also caused the Charlotte (N.C.) Observer to announce that it had frozen its circulation and that no new subscriptions would be accepted until they could be substituted for present subscribers.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON--You who are figuring how much money you can invest in war bonds, have you, I wonder, thought of some of the same things that haunt me since I came back from Africa and Sicily?

In the last few days I have seen some advertising for the third war loan drive which emphasizes the theme that "this one's going to hurt!"

That sounds a little ridiculous to me, as if investing money in a perfectly good security is going to hurt. Anyway, who in civilian life is being hurt?

No matter how many bonds you buy you won't suffer like the soldiers I saw on the stretchers in ambulance airplanes being flown from Sicily to hospitals back in Africa.

And it is not only the physical suffering. In fact, the casualties so far, thank God, have been relatively few. What hurts over there is something else. Every time I think of the war over there I see the eyes of men who have wrong my hand and asked me when I arrived back home to telephone to a wife or mother in America.

I am haunted by the memory of a young soldier on the next cot. When they woke him up he leaped to his feet with a moan that I shall never forget. He apologized and explained that he was dreaming that he was holding on his lap his six-month-old baby boy whom he had never seen.

An incident like that almost makes one ashamed to come back home to his family and to the unbelievable luxury and comfort of living in America.

It seemed to me over there that the pervading agony of this war is not the physical danger. It is the agony of homesickness, of separation--indefinite separation from parents and sweethearts,

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEWBURGH--That rotten racket, Local 825 of the Operating Engineers' Union, recently pulled a strike here that I think you might like to know about. The army is building a big air field in Newburgh and several auxiliary fields nearby for the use of the West Point cadets. It is costing about $26,000,000 of your money, much of which is being squandered on idlers who get $16 a day for nominal work as oilers on the excavating machines which can be oiled, when they need it, every few days, by your little boy or your old aunt. The operators of the machines get a guarantee of $80 a week even if it rains all week and they don't work an hour and $22 a day when they do work.

There is one contractor on the job named John Arbore, of Newburgh, who runs an open shop and the mob made him send his men into the union. He was working on the big central job at Newburgh, which is known as Stewart Field, but on Montgomery Field an auxiliary or satellite field, 12 miles away. Nevertheless the mob struck Stewart and all the rest of the jobs and four full good fair-weather working days were totally lost and the rest of the week was a wash-out. The racket sent emissaries to Washington to complain to the chief of engineers of the war department but he bounced them right back and Col. A. B. Jones, the district engineer, whose headquarters are in New York, issued a statement blaming the union for blockading the job when the army was trying to take advantage of the summer weather to remove hazards which might cause the death of fledgling cadets from the military academy. The racket did not win its open shop and the men finally struggled back.

In justice to the men it may be said that some of them were disgusted and would have stayed on the job but for their fear of the racket. They said so to reliable individuals with whom I have discussed the strike. There was no strike vote and I think it may be assumed that if there had been a vote the strike would have been rejected overwhelmingly.

The local boss of the union is Henry McArdle, the financial secretary who is about 28 years old, well educated and under indictment in this county

OHIO COMPANY MAKING GIANT GUN MOUNTS

Cannons Credited With Being Able To 'Hit a Rowboat Over the Horizon.'

(By United Press)

AKRON--Three hundred ton gun mounts for some of the world's largest cannons--which can hit "a rowboat over the horizon"--are being made here today by the Wellman Engineering company, of Cleveland.

Capt. Robb W. James of the war department's Cleveland ordnance district, told a group of newspapermen touring the plant that the company was one of the few in the country producing the giant gun mount.

The mount, a "barbette carriage," is made for the huge 16-inch coast defense rifles which fire projectiles weighing more than a ton a distance of 28 miles with uncanny accuracy.

"The 16-inch and its barbette carriage are so delicately balanced that should the regular electric power used to operate the mechanism fail it is possible for only a few men to aim and fire the gun by manual controls alone," Captain James explained.

Aiming the weapon at the precise angle and at the correct elevation to "hit a rowboat over the horizon" is one of modern gunnery's most brilliant feats, he said.

When the target is sighted, ranges are carefully worked out mathematically and allowance is made for practically every condition the projectile encounters in flight--wind velocity, direction, and curvature of the earth at the specific point.

The Wellman plant tackled the gun mount job with past experience in making weapons for Uncle Sam.

Shortly after the Spanish-American war, the plant made the disappearing type mounts for six-inch coast artillery rifles. During the first World War, gun carriages were designed in favor of steering engines and condensers for naval ships. In the 1920's the company built the world's largest pontoon crane for the navy.

Dir. J. C. Hodge, company vice president, said that in most instances the work in the plant did not move from machine to machine but the machines moved to the work.

WIDOW, 70, DIES

Mrs. Anna C. Long Taken By Death at Hospital.

Following a lingering illness, Mrs. Anna C. Long, 70, of Henry avenue, widow of Henry Long, died Thursday at the Mansfield General hospital.

She was born in Marion county but spent the greater part of her life in this vicinity. She was a member of the Miamian Rehearsal Lodge.

Surviving are two sons, Henry and Howard; two daughters, Mrs. Ralph Johnson and Mrs. John Florio; three brothers, J. D. Snyder, Samuel Snyder and George Snyder; two sisters, Mrs. Percy Graves and Mrs. Ollie Frey; and 11 grandchildren.

The body is at the Wapner funeral home where services will be conducted Monday at 1 p. m. in charge of Rev. Roscoe O. Stull, pastor of the Pilgrim church. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

LONG ILLNESS ENDS IN DEATH

Mrs. Rosa Rhine Succumbs at Home in Shelby.

SHELBY--Mrs. Rosa Rhine, 83, died Thursday afternoon at her home on North Gamble street, after several months' illness.

Mrs. Rhine, who was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kochenderfer, pioneer residents of Richland county, was a lifelong resident of Shelby or vicinity and was the last to survive in a family of eight children.

She was a member of Jehovah Witnesses, who will conduct funeral services Saturday at 2 p. m. at the Barkdull funeral home, Shelby. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

She is survived by her husband, William Rhine, and a number of nephews and nieces.

TWO CHILDREN DIE IN BLAZE

Brother, 4, Starts Fire While Playing With Matches In Apartment.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND - A two-year-old girl and her infant sister were dead today as the result of a fire started when their brother, 4, played with matches while their parents were out buying clothes for them.

About 30 persons were routed by heavy smoke in the 22-room building which housed 62 people.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gray said they had left the children alone when they returned home from shopping, their daughters, Patricia, 2, Joyce, 4-months were dead, and Frank, jr., was in the hospital being treated for minor burns.

The neighbor who was asked to watch them said she had been in the apartment about five minutes before the boy ran out, shouting "Fire!" She said that at that time, the boy was asleep.

Frank told firemen how he played with the matches causing the blaze, about 100 yards from Central police station near Cleveland's downtown district.

Firemen rescued an 18-year-old mother and her eight-months-old son, a girl 7, who accidentally was locked in a bathroom in another apartment, and three unidentified children. Others escaped without aid. Damage was estimated at $1,350.

MASKED BANDITS GET $34,000

Loat Bank In Ontario After Holding Manager Captive.

WHEATLEY, Ont. (AP) - Six men, with masked and painted faces, made off with $34,000 from the branch of the Royal Bank of Canada today, after holding the manager, W. P. Forshee and his wife captive at gunpoint in their own apartment throughout the night.

When the time lock was released at 9 a. m., the men forced Forshee to open the vault. They scooped up all the money and headed toward Windsor.

SHORTAGE OF MANPOWER HITS OHIO PRISONS

Mooney Says Patients In Mental Institutions Are Holding Jobs.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS - The wartime manpower shortage in Ohio is so acute that it has even penetrated Ohio's overcrowded penal institutions.

Welfare Director Herbert R. Mooney revealed today that every inmate is needed in some essential working capacity in the state's major prisons.

The situation parallels that in the mental institutions, where many of the non-dangerous patients have been hired at the average pay of $10 per month, to work on jobs in which they have had previous experience.

"We are paying 584 patients of the state's mental institutions who have had previous training and experience to work in groups under the supervision of a regular institutional employee," Mooney said.

"However, the only patients permitted to work are those who have improved sufficiently to be trusted to complete their job without causing damage or harm."

"This employment program fits in with the state's mental rehabilitation program, he added, "and there is no doubt that this work has helped to strengthen the minds of the patients."

The recovery rate in 1942 in mental institutions averaged 50 per cent of all patients admitted in that year for a new all time high.

Meanwhile, these prisons have expanded their regular agriculture and industrial program to the point where they have received special recognition from the federal government for aiding the war effort.

The prisons however still remain overcrowded. The ancient Ohio penitentiary built to house 1,800 prisoners now holds 3,350 inmates.

NEW PORTAL PAY PLAN STUDIED

Operators Contend Lewis' Proposal Would Cost Them Too Much.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON--Wage negotiators in the salt coal industry are considering a new portal-to-portal pay proposal which would change the entire basis of measuring the miners' working day.

The proposal, as first advanced by President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers provided for an 8 1/2 hour day, including all travel time, with time and a half after eight hours a day, or after 10 hours a week.

Operators calculated that would raise wages an average of $1.99 a day for a five-day week and $2.20 a day for a six-day week. They were reported authoritatively to have turned it down as too costly.

The miners now work a seven-hour day, all productive time. They get time and a half after 3 1/2 hours a week. They contend that is comparable to 4 1/2 to 4 3/4 hours in other jobs, figuring underground travel at 1 1/2 to two hours a day.

Portal-to-portal proposals heretofore under consideration would not change the method of measuring the working day, which has always been computed from the time the miner reaches the place where he starts working until he leaves it and heads for the mouth of the mine.

The UMW-Illinois contract, which the War Labor Board (WLB) refused to approve, would retain that method but allow $1.25 a day for travel time.

The miners are meeting separately and informally with the northern Appalachian operators and a group of Illinois operators.

Up and Down STREET

Whenever the county commissioners can't locate some papers they need they can nearly always find them in Guy Stewart's "private file." The file is just the space between the blotter on his desk and the desk top and one of its best features is that it is flexible holding a large or small number of papers as required. The latest idea of P. S. Carroll and C. L. Shoup, the other two commissioners, is that they pass a resolution requiring Stewart to clean off his desk.

Boy Scouts have been doing various farm jobs this summer and tomorrow they will be "potato diggers." The boys will help pick potatoes at the Lockhart farm, near Belleville. Any scout who wants to help is to be at the Scout headquarters at 8 a. m. and is to take his own lunch.

At the close of the summer season of the children's reading clubs at the Mansfield Public Library, 83 members of the older group and 49 of the younger children had completed requirements of their respective clubs. Miss Myra Lorimer, children's librarian, said today. Seventy-four children were enrolled in the younger club, but only 49 completed the requirements. Certificates will be awarded on the children at a meeting later in the month.
